Police charge youth with vandalism spree

Police hope to wipe off the ledger some 29 incidents of tire slashings with the arrest of a 17-year-old Romulus youth who has admitted to a score of malicious destruction of property cases involving cars.

The youth, Chester Norman Stapleton, 15756 Orchard, was out on bail in an unrelated case for breaking and entering a vacant building when he was arrested on the second charge.

Stapleton, who admitted that he and three juveniles were involved in some 29 cases of tire slashings on June 16, later led Wayne County Sheriff Detectives Edward Lindberg and Robert Pond to the area of the incidents.

Stapleton is being held in Wayne County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond. Examination is set for today in Romulus' 34th District Court. The other defendants, all juveniles whose names cannot be released, were handed over to juvenile authorities.

According to police, Stapleton was observed breaking and entering vacant homes in the Meadows Subdivision by neighbors who reported it to the Wayne County Sheriff Detective Bureau. He was identified and subsequently released on $10,000 bond.

Officers believe that persons living in the general vicinity were recipients of stolen articles or items removed from vacant homes. Investigation is continuing and further arrests are anticipated.

While in police custody for auto theft, Stapleton willingly accompanied Detectives Pond and Lindberg to the Meadows Subdivision. There he pointed out many homes where cars were parked and had their tires slashed in the early morning hours of June 16.

Police further said that Stapleton admitted directly to eight of the tire slashings in the Meadows subdivision, located in the southeast portion of Romulus.

"The persistent determination of Detectives Pond and Lindberg was instrumental in bringing the case to a successful conclusion," law enforcement officials at Wayne County Sheriff Department said.

"The officers were stymied many times in their investigation by the indifference of neighbors who did not wish to be involved.

"In those instances when a citizen did venture forth and provide a lead, the officers followed it up to such a degree that it was beneficial in building the evidence that was compiled," the police official said.

Lifesaver for seniors

Vial of Life, a program sponsored by the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department in conjunction with the Romulus Fire Department, will prove to be of great value to community senior citizens. The small cylindrical vial contains vital information to be used in an emergency — doctor's name, medication being used, hospital telephone number, allergic reactions to medicines, blood type, etc. Shown pointing to where the vials are recommended to be placed in the refrigerator are Mrs. Donna Zavitz (center), coordinator for senior drop-in center, while Mrs. Marie Debuyscher, recreation department director, and Fire Chief John Wilhide look on. One-way trips only

Huron Township agrees to compromise truck solution

By CONNIE MILFORD
ANP Staff Writer

Waltz may have seen the last of "the empties comin' back" in Huron Township's battle to eliminate north-bound heavy hauler trucks from rumbling through its boundaries on their way back from Monroe to the Sumpter dump.

Township Sup. John Puskar and Police Chief Joe Carney met Thursday afternoon with top officials of the Wayne County Road Commission, with the result that, Puskar said, he was "very happy with the outcome."

"Wayne County was firm about controlling the road, which they said was a county road," he explained, "and they wanted our signs down."

"However, in return for that, they agreed that they would contact the M & B trucking firm, and eliminate the passage of empty sand haulers on their trip back from Monroe at the end of the day."

Detroit Edison was contacted," Puskar said, "and they were concerned with not creating any type of environment hazard; so they agreed to communicate with the truckers in re-routing the empty haulers."

That was basically what the township was worried about, he continued, eliminating at least one leg of the north and south-bound heavy hauler traffic.

They felt the empty trucks might be more desirable to eliminate, Puskar said, "because they tend to bounce around more on the soft shoulders of the road, and being two large vehicles, could possibly force a car right off the road."

Trucks passing each other going in opposite directions were considered dangerous by township officials and police, Puskar explained.

In return for taking down the signs, Puskar said, the township "had the personal guarantee of Mike Berry, chairman of the road commission, that the north-bound sand haulers would be controlled."

The recently-posted signs were removed by 2 p.m. last Friday, Puskar said, and as of 4 p.m. that same day, "we haven't seen one empty coming back."

Before last Thursday's meeting, the township had gone to court and won the right to post restrictive signs aimed at the sand haulers, because, he said, "it was the only way we seemed to be able to communicate with the truckers."

Also before that meeting, one issue raised by the township officials was why the County Road Commission had not issued tickets to the huge vehicles — though both the State Highway Department and Huron Township Police had.

The Thursday meeting ended as a compromise for control of the roads, both sides felt.

In Romulus

Seniors' housing one step closer

The first step in a long process to bring senior citizen housing to Romulus was taken several weeks ago, when the Romulus School Board voted to sell 2.42 acres of school property presently occupied by the Romulus Elementary School at 11165 Olive.

The action was taken after Leo Sklar, a Southfield developer, petitioned school officials to consider selling him the land to build a senior citizen housing complex.

After several months of study and deliberation, the board voted to place the parcel up for a minimum bid of $200,000.

According to Sklar, who has built similar structures in Wayne and Garden City, the school land is the prime piece of property in the city for this kind of development because of its close proximity to the downtown shopping area, bank, post office and Senior Citizen Drop-In Center on Bibbins.

If Sklar and his North Cranbrook Associates are the successful bidders, he said his next step will be to secure funding through the Michigan State Housing Authority, which funnels federal money for housing projects of this nature across the State.

Since he has already been designated as the city's agent for senior citizen housing by the Romulus City Council, Sklar thinks his chances are excellent that his project will be funded in Lansing, thus paving the way for detailed plans to be worked out with the city.

If everything goes according to plan, Sklar hopes construction can begin next year, with 170-200, one and two-bedroom senior citizen apartments ready for occupancy before 1980.

If anyone has questions about the project, call City Hall at 941-0666, extension 20.

School lunches to return

Plans are underway to provide hot lunches in all Romulus Community Schools beginning this fall.

The district began this planning to prepare for Michigan's mandatory district-wide lunch program. Under Michigan law, lunches must now be available in all schools beginning in October, 1978.

Presently, lunch programs are not available to the majority of Romulus students. Under the proposed service, the North Junior High School will be used as a distribution center for pre-packed frozen lunches for all elementary schools. The heating of these lunches will be done on site at each elementary school. All hot lunches for the Romulus Senior High School, North Junior High School and South Junior High School students will be prepared on site in their respective kitchens.

The necessary equipment is now being purchased. Most of the funding for this equipment will come from the state in accordance with the provision of the mandated lunch program.

The Romulus Board of Education contracted with ARA Food Services, Inc., to operate the district lunch program. ARA personnel are working closely with school district administrators in organizing the initial phases of this new venture. ARA is a food service company which has managed food service programs for school districts, hospitals, nursing homes, businesses and industry for over 50 years.

Citizens help sought to end school damage

Residents of the Romulus School District are being asked to help in the never-ending battle to cut down on damages being caused yearly by vandals to city school buildings and equipment.

"We the people" to meet

Juvenile crime and drug problems developing in elementary school grades will be the main topics of discussion at We The People's meeting in city hall's community room at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday).

The non-partisan, civic group meets monthly and endeavors to get citizen involvement in activities to improve the community.

The public is invited to attend tomorrow night's meeting and have input into the planning of We The People's future thrust, a group spokesman said.

(Note: "Michigan's Forts and Villages" is the ninth in a series of 15 weekly articles on "Offbeat Michigan." These features are designed to encourage Michigan tourism and near-home travel.)

Restored outposts, homesteads and factories across Michigan mirror a time when life was simpler but by no means easier, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Attractions in 20 communities were chosen by Auto Club because they help preserve the Wolverine State's past. The exhibits show the way it was from the time of the first settlers and during the days of French rule to when Michigan laid its foundation as an industrial giant.

The more than 85 homes and buildings of Dearborn's Greenfield Village provide a 300-year panorama of American life. Among the historic structures from Michigan and other states are Thomas Edison's laboratory and the birthplace and tiny workshop of pioneer Henry Ford.

At Flint, a steam locomotive ride through Crossroads Village exposes visitors to more than a dozen local 19th century buildings plus a recreation area and lake. The village is open Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Fort Michilimackinac at Mackinaw City is one of four structures that tell of the state's military history. It was built by the French in 1715 and has been under reconstruction since 1959.

Fort Mackinac on Mackinac Island was garrisoned by the British in 1780. Its officers' stone quarters is the oldest original military building in the Midwest and is open May 13 - Oct. 22.

At the tip of Upper Michigan's Keweenaw Peninsula stands the last original wooden fort east of the Mississippi River. Fort Wilkins, built in 1844, is part of a state park east of Copper Harbor.

Detroit's Fort Wayne overlooks Canada and served as an Army post from the Civil War through the Vietnam conflict. Daily from June through October, visitors can stroll restored stone ramparts along the Detroit River.

While not a fort, Niles' Fort St. Joseph museum contains artifacts from the site of a once military post built in 1691 and used by French, British and Spanish troops.

Visitors can get a bird's-eye view of the Lake Michigan shoreline and imagine what it was like to live in a fort by visiting the block house at Muskegon State Park.

The history of Michigan's copper era is told daily via tours through three restored log cabins at 100-year-old Victoria, an Upper Peninsula ghost town south of Ontonagon. Fayette, in Fayette State Park near Garden in the Upper Peninsula, was an 1880s iron smelting center. Five buildings there, including an opera house and lime kiln, are open Memorial Day-Oct. 15.

Guides in pioneer dress at Hastings' Charlton Park Village and Museum relate the 1800s story of small-town Michigan. The 10 buildings there include a circa-1860 stage coach inn, a blacksmith shop and bank. The attraction is open Memorial Day through September.

Northville's Mill Race Historical Village is open Sundays and holidays and features a cottage where work by the Northville Weavers' Guild may be purchased. Livonia's Quaker Acres features an 1841 farm house-museum and is open Wednesdays and Sundays in summer.

Tours at Muskegon's Heritage Villagetake visitors through elegant homes of two 19th century lumber barons. Ludington's Pioneer Village is built on a Lake Michigan bluff and includes that city's first home. Exhibits at Muskegon and Ludington are open Memorial Day to Labor Day, with Pioneer Village also open over Christmas.

At Fremont's Windmill Gardens, nine restored mills remind that Michigan farms did not always run on electric power. That attraction is open in summer and features a century-old windmill.

Holland's Dutch heritage is highlighted by two parks. A 200-year-old Dutch windmill is the centerpiece of Windmill Island and wooden shoes are among the most popular souvenirs at nearby Dutch Village. Windmill Island is open May through October. Dutch Village operates mid-April to mid-October.

At Rockford's Squire Street Square, visitors may dine inside a covered mill or buy blown glass, handmade candles and leather goods at 30 restored shops. Lake City's Guest Country Store Museum consists of three old school buildings that house exhibits, including a logging-era display.

The Octagon House is just one of 10 structures dating to the 1860s that visitors can tour at the Apple Barrel Farms near Washington. Huron City in the thumb was destroyed by fire in 1881. Rebuilt several years later, it is today's Restored Lumber Town featuring a museum, 19th century general store and Coast Guard station.

'Thistle Stop' set

A "Thistle Stop" will be held at the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock on Sunday at 2 p.m.

Park naturalist Glenn Dent will help visitors explore the micro-habitats of the thistle plant. A fascinating variety of animal life is attracted to these plants for food, shelter or both. Bring along a magnifying glass for a closer look into a seldom seen world.

The program is free, however vehicle entry permits are required.

For additional information contact the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark at 782-1255 (Flat Rock).

Banana shakes to raise money
for hospital home

A special banana shake promotion is being conducted through Saturday to help raise funds for the construction of the Ronald McDonald House, a 20-family home away from home for families whose children are receiving treatment for cancer and other serious illnesses at Children's Hospital of Michigan, located in Detroit.

The new house is designed to end the inconvenience of parents commuting long distances or sleeping on cots, sofas, and chairs while their youngsters are undergoing treatment or tests.

It will enable families to live together in a home environment — and also gain strengths and share experiences with other families staying at the home.

The house will be built adjacent to Children's Hospital in the Detroit Medical Center. Children's Hospital Michigan is the largest pediatric hospital in the state and second largest in the country. It serves patients from throughout Michigan, neighboring states and even foreign countries.

Ronald McDonald House will be owned and operated by the Children's Oncology Services of Michigan, Inc., a non-profit corporation made up primarily of parents whose children have suffered serious illnesses.

Major funding for the house will be provided by McDonald's Restaurants, a chain of restaurant operators who have pledged to raise $300,000 toward the cost of the project, estimated at $500,000.

2 Women killed in auto crash

Man charged with manslaughter

A Romulus man has been charged on two counts of manslaughter following a fatal traffic accident in Westland Saturday in which two elderly women died.

Lief O. Hanson, 35, of Romulus, was arraigned Monday in Westland's 18th District Court on the two felony charges. A plea of not guilty was entered on his behalf and preliminary examination set for July 31, according to Westland Police Officer Peter Brokas.

Killed in the crash were the driver, Marjorie O'Rourke, 61, of Wayne, and her mother, Cecilia Malone, 84, of Detroit. According to Brokas, the women's 1974 Maverick, headed north on Venoy, apparently rolled into, then stopped in the middle of the intersection while the light turned red.

According to the police reconstruction of events, the pick-up truck driven east on Palmer Road by Hanson came into the intersection on a green light and struck the women's car broadside.

Hanson had been drinking, according to the police report.

Victims' car rolled into intersection

Another car, headed west on Palmer Road, also had the green light but saw the stalled Maverick in the intersection and stopped, Brokas said.

It is unclear at this time why the Maverick first stopped for the red light, then rolled into the intersection, then rolled back and then forward again, Brokas said.

He added that the Maverick will be examined to see if there were any apparent defects, but that the vehicle may be too damaged to determine if there was a mechanical failure.

Hanson's preliminary examination will determine whether a crime was committed and he will either be bound over for trial if the prosecutor's office can prove there is reasonable cause to believe the defendant has committed the crime. If there isn't enough evidence, the Hanson will be released.

Westland police have not yet determined whether there was a mechanical defect in the car driven by the two women which would have caused it to roll into the intersection.

"We have had a busy week," Westland police said, "and we're still investigating the accident, along with a couple of other fatalities we had last week."

A motorcycle-auto collision at Joy and Newburgh also claimed the life of a 17-year-old Livonia youth, Jeffrey L. Lane.

All about computers

Wayne County Commissioner Edgar L. Harris (left) was on hand for the unveiling of the new computerized job information terminal which will provide up-to-date job information on 350 occupations for all Romulus youth, including those in school and out of school. The terminal is located in the Career Opportunities Research Center of Romulus Senior High School, 9650 South Wayne Rd., in Romulus. Harris said that the school hopes to aid all the members of the student body with their career choices thanks to the new computer terminal. The County Office of Manpower is installing 50 computer terminals throughout suburban Wayne County. Pictured are (left to right): Harris; Alice Pugedi, job placement specialist for the Romulus School System; Kathy Carroll, an eleventh grade student; Beverly Gowder, an eleventh grade student (wearing hat); and Al Sheffield, project director of the research center.

For muscular dystrophy

Jerry Lewis annual benefit to be held at Skateland

A Jerry Lewis Skate-A-Thon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association is set for Saturday, Aug. 5 at Skateland West in Westland. The skating event will begin at 11 a.m. and continue marathon-style until 11 p.m.

All proceeds from the Skate-A-

Thon will be donated to the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon, and the public is welcome to participate by registering to skate or by contributing to MDA at the rink. Susan Cahill, the skating rink manager, said that she's "delighted to be a part of Jerry's fight against muscular dystrophy. It's truly a worthwhile cause."

All across the country, rink operators who are among the 1,500 members of the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association (RSROA), are sponsoring Skate-A-Thons in cooperation with MDA.

City-owned land offered for sale to residents

Some 25 city-owned lots, scattered throughout Romulus, are being offered for sale this year to residents by order of the city council.

The lots, which range in market value from $4,400 to $1,300 will be offered to citizens on a bid basis starting at one half of their assessed value.

All the lots, according to City Clerk Leonard J. Folmar, are suitable for construction and located in good residential areas in the city.

A complete description and minimum bid price for each lot is available, free of charge, at the clerk's office by calling 941-0666, ext. 31.

Sealed proposals will be received by the clerk's office until the bid opening at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 15, 1978. Proposals must be submitted on forms furnished by the city and placed in sealed envelopes endorsed: "city-owned properties bid." A five percent bid bond will be required in the form of cash, certified check or money order, Folmar said.

Schools hire special ed. director

Thomas Beltramo, of the Taylor Public Schools, has been hired by the Romulus Community Schools as director of alternative education, according to Supt. James Garfield.

The alternate education department program is designed to assist students who have problems functioning in the normal school setting. More individualized instruction in classes with a smaller pupil to teacher ration is utilized.

Currently, Garfield explained, Romulus has about 60 students who are being taught in special classes at South Jr. High School in a program separate from the regular school curriculum.

Carrier of the week

For young Tracy Cline, baseball is his favorite sport, but for Associated Newspapers Inc., Tracy is one of the many youths delivering The Romulus Roman in the Romulus community.

The 11-year-old, a sixth grader at Barth Elementary School, is the son of Elvira Cline of Wharman Road, Romulus.

Tracy has been an ANP news carrier since 1977.

Five newly elected trustees join in first board meeting

The newly elected school board trustees joined President Wayne Avery and Secretary Shirley Lombardi in assuming the reins of the Romulus Board of Education at its July meeting.

Treasurer Michael D. Woods, appointed by the previous board to serve in an interim position, returned to the board after being elected to a full four-year term.

Woods, who is also public housing director for the city of Romulus, is married and expects to become a father soon. Among leisure activities he enjoys are chess, reading, jogging, basketball and talking to people.

Another new four-year-term member is Theresa M. Kraft. Theresa is married and the mother of three children - Joyce, 14; Diane, 12; and Philip, 7. Theresa likes to travel and spends most of her time looking after her family. She said she looks forward to serving in her new position with great anticipation.

Elected to a three-year term is registered nurse Evelyn E. Hopewell, also married and a mother of three children - Marva, 9; Angela, 5; and Kimberly, 5. When time permits, she delves into such hobbies as ceramics, needlepoint and gardening. She is also very actively involved in scouting.

Margaret A. Cole joins the team with a two-year term. She and her husband, Gordon, are the proud parents of Michael, 18; Carol, 16; Jeffery, 15; Jacqueline, 14; Patrick, 10; and Susan, 9. Most leisure times are devoted to a combination of reading and camping, when she's not involved in some other community affair. She expects that the board position will occupy most of her spare time hereafter.

Rounding out the team with a one-year term is Jo Ann Marvicsin, married and mother of Wesley, Jr., 21; Abby, 16; and Amy, 11. In addition to her long involvement in community affairs, she still finds time for such hobbies as sewing, reading and traveling. In addition to her position on the board, she will continue to serve on the district's committee for barrier-free design planning for the handicapped.

Perhaps the most unique quality of the new board is the fact that for the first time in its history there is a majority of female trustees (5 to 2). No one has checked, but it's a good guess that they may well be a first in the state and even the nation.

With a big heave

Youngsters in photo show what fun can be had at the annual Romulus Parks and Recreation picnic which begins at 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 3, at Willow Metropark, Willow Road and Huron River Drive, in Sumpter Township. Last year, some 500 children from the recreation department's summer program took part in the annual picnic. This year, youngsters will be served hot dogs, chips, pop, and ice cream and will participate in a number of recreations events, games, contests and swimming. The picnic will close out the department's summer program this year. (Photo by Jay Young, Romulus public information officer.)

County wins 11 honors

Wayne County has won 11 national achievement awards from the National Association of Counties (NACo) for excellence and innovation in county government programs, according to Jarrette Simmons, chairman of the Board of Commissioners.

The awards were presented at the 1978 National Association of Counties Annual Conference in Atlanta, Ga., to a three-member county delegation.

Outgoing NACo President William O. Beach of Tennessee congratulated the Wayne County Board of Commissioners and the agencies involved in the 11 programs for "showing special sensitivity to human needs and for creating outstanding programs in the criminal justice area."

Simmons said the county award winners have helped reduce crowded court dockets, made the air cleaner, brought nature closer to the urban dweller and fought crime on all fronts.

"Our anti-crime programs contributed greatly to a 17 percent decrease in crime in Wayne County last year," Simmons emphasized. "We would like to continue that trend, but a great part of our ability depends on a successful millage renewal."

County Proposition A which will be on the Aug. 8 primary ballot, calls for a one-mill renewal for five years.

This year the award-winning programs for Wayne County include the Sheriff's Starship Command

Emergency Network program, the Wayne County Air Pollution Control program, the Eliza Howell Interpretive Nature Center — An Indoor-Outdoor Classroom, the Recorder's Court programs for Courtflow Improvement and Pre-trial Diversion; the Recorder's Court Drug Program and Treatment Alternatives to Street Crime, the Out-County Circuit Court Services program, the Master Gardener program, the Wayne County Troubled Employees' Assistance Program, programs by the Wayne County Office of Emergency Preparedness and the Respite Care Program headquartered at the Northwestern Guidance Clinic.

In the Sheriff's Starship Command — deputies and volunteer CBers are working together to curb crime and aid motorists by linking up the citizens band radio network with the Sheriff's Communication Center in Westland.

Volunteers operating out of 84 home base stations in Western Wayne County — along with volunteers who man the base station at the communication center — take calls from CBers about stranded motorists, traffic conditions and potential crimes. Sheriff's cars (called Starships) respond to the CB reports via the communication center's base station.

The Wayne County Air Pollution Control has achieved dramatic results in cleaning the air in Wayne County which is one of the foremost manufacturing and commercial centers of the world, with nearly 35,000 commercial and industrial establishments and 870,000 housing units. It has reduced the total annual emissions of pollutants (suspended particulate matter and sulfur oxides) from 670,000 tons to 178,000 tons.

The Eliza Howell Interpretive Nature Center is the county's new $800,000 nature facility, built primarily with state recreation bonds, to bring urban dwellers closer to nature. Ideally located on the Detroit-Western Wayne County border, its nature trails, fauna and flora exhibits, educational tours, lectures and programs, are readily accessible to hundreds of thousands of county residents and visitors.

Recorder's Court Courtflow Improvement program implemented a "crash" effort to clear crowded court dockets and jail cells of persons awaiting trial, thereby saving the county millions of dollars in prisoner housing costs. In one year, the criminal caseload was reduced by 3,000 cases. This court now has a "90 Days to Trial" standard which exceeds the national standard for bringing a case to trial.

Recorder's Court Drug and Alternatives to Street Crime program attempts to reduce the felony recidivism rate for drug-dependent defendants, many of whom are on probation. It was discovered that without specialized drug treatment and counseling, this group tended to repeat felonies at the rate of 61 percent. Today, the recidivism rate stands at 27.8 percent, and only 13 percent were felony charges.

The out-county Circuit Court Services Program was set up to save suburban police departments time, money and manpower. Satellite courts were set up so that criminal pre-trials could be conducted in or near the community where the crime occurred. Previously, police, witnesses, lawyers and others had to travel to downtown Detroit for this service.

In Master Gardener the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service and Wayne County Community College turns experienced gardeners into "Master Gardeners" who then go out into the community and teach interested citizens and homeowners about horticulture. The Master Gardeners participate in public garden clinics, flower day at Eastern Market, special community restoration projects — and make field visits to homes to help citizens on a one-to-one basis. All projects total more than 1,000 hours of valuable time.

Troubled Employees' Assistance's goal is to help employees resolve problems that interfere with work performance such as alcoholism, depression, financial difficulties, marital troubles, physical illness and drugs. The program is an education, prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and follow-up method that is staffed entirely by county volunteers who donate personal time at no cost. The public benefits through reduction of absenteeism and better job performance.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness changed its name from Civil Defense to emphasize its efforts to protect the public from natural disasters rather than military attack. Among its many accomplishments are Skywarn, a system using volunteer mobile ham radio operators to spot tornadoes and severe weather, a fully-equipped portable disaster hospital located at Metro Airport; and implementation of community siren warning systems.

Respite Care provides short-term care in foster homes for retarded or disabled children, adults or elderly persons to give their families relief from constant care — or aid them in emergency situations. Some 80,000 retarded citizens live in Wayne County — with an estimated 95 percent living outside institutions. Experts say relief programs such as this one help keep the entire family together. Headquartered at the Northwestern Guidance Clinic at 6221 Merriman, Garden City.

Recorder's Court Pre-trial Diversion is to reduce a court backlog, lower the recidivism rate and provide alternatives for non-violent first offenders. The system eliminates many procedural steps in the court process. Selected first offenders are placed on voluntary one-year probation in lieu of standing trial. To date, 1,875 defendants have been enrolled, saving $1,200 each in criminal justice system costs.

Intermediate District expects hike Start's funding

Head Start funds, administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, are allotted for preschool classes for children from low-income families. The classes are designed to let them start kindergarten on a par with other children.

Last year, the intermediate district applied for — and received — $1 million in Head Start funds for Wayne County school districts.

The sharp increase in funding sought this year resulted from an investigation by Congressman Ford which disclosed that Michigan was not taking full advantage of the money available.

A spokesperson for the Regional Office of HEW in Chicago said processing of the Intermediate District's application is not yet completed but that it should be approved within 30 days. The application was filed last May.

Following is a list of area districts, which can expect to receive Head Start or Day Care subgrants, if the application is approved.

— Inkster, $103,418; Plymouth-Canton, $64,648; Romulus, $105,078; Sumpter (Van Buren schools), $67,694; Wayne-Westland, $179,810; and Westwood, $141,118.

KINFOLK OUT OF TOWN?
A GOOD REASON TO PRE-PLAN

We have, on occasion, suggested some of the most important reasons for pre-planning a funeral:

1. To alleviate the burden which falls on your family.
2. To insure that your wishes will be followed exactly.
3. To avoid the risk of wasteful, unnecessary over-spending.

But there is another, very important reason for pre-planning a funeral — one which affects a great many persons.

Not everyone has "family" in town. We are a nation of travelers. And, although long-distance, out-of-town funeral arrangements are not uncommon, they tend to be more costly.

If you do not have "kin" close by, it may be a good idea to consider a pre-planned or pre-paid funeral now. Many states have strict laws concerning pre-paid funeral services and burial expenses. We know what all is involved and can handle the details for you. We'd be glad to discuss them with you.

Romulus 'pioneer' reaches National Guard milestone

Nikki Newman, already a pioneer in the Michigan Army National Guard, has reached another milestone.

When the Romulus resident joined the Guard five years ago, she became the first nurse in the entire Michigan Guard. On July 19, she was promoted from the rank of captain to major.

Maj. Newman is chief nurse for the 207th Combat Support Hospital, headquartered in Detroit. Her job calls for her to supervise other nurses within the unit, an increasingly important job as more women join the unit as nurses. There now are 11 nurses in the unit, a definite change from just five years ago.

Maj. Newman says she isn't sure why other women have signed on for stints in the Guard, but she admits her own reasons have little to do with being a pioneer.

"It's sort of a patriotic sense of duty," she said. "I enjoy giving something of myself to my country. But I enjoy it, too. It's a different challenge. It's a different world. You can grow in different areas."

A registered nurse, Maj. Newman spent two years in the Army, including a year-long tour in Korea. After leaving the Army, she took a job as a nurse at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Allen Park. While there, a National Guard sergeant who was one of her patients, suggested she explore opportunities in the Michigan National Guard. She took his advice and soon was a member of the Detroit unit. She still is employed at the VA hospital, currently as an operating nurse.

As a member of the National Guard, Maj. Newman attends meetings with her unit one weekend a month. Each summer she takes part in two weeks of annual training at the Camp Grayling Military Reservation. This year's training session for her unit was July 8-22. While at Camp Grayling, she works at the camp dispensary or at the field hospital.

Training sessions sometimes cut into her free time, but Maj. Newman says she doesn't mind.

It's like belonging to a big club that meets once a month," she said.

Her husband is not a member of the Guard, but he too apparently doesn't mind the extra time required of her by the Guard.

"Whatever makes me happy makes him happy."

Nearly 6,000 men and women of the Michigan Army National Guard were involved in the two-week annual training at Camp Grayling. The units run the gamut from engineering units to military police, and from signal units to medical detachments. The units are headquartered in various armories around the state, from Calumet to Monroe and from Flink to Coldwater.

Manning backs special public works proposal

Wayne County Commissioner Richard E. Manning, testifying in Washington before the House Economic Development Subcommittee, has called for separate consideration of public works funding for communities with populations below 50,000.

Manning, who is vice-chairman of the county board, testified on House Bill 12993, the Administration's proposed "labor intensive public works" program. The legislation would provide $1 billion for each of the next three years to state and local governments for the repair of public facilities. Fifty percent of the jobs created must be made available to the long-term unemployed, particularly minorities and youth.

Although indicating support for a public works rehabilitation program, Manning took issue with the procedure for allocating the funds. Under the bill, cities of more than 50,000 population would receive a direct allocation of funds based on their unemployment rate and number of unemployed persons. Counties containing such cities would be credited with the unemployed and unemployment rate for the balance of county.

"This proposal is simply not equitable and fails to recognize that most county services are provided county-wide, very often from public facilities located within major cities.

Special interest legislation milestone

A new milestone in special interest legislation was reached in Lansing recently with the governor's signing into law Public Act 140.
That legislation mandated that all line haul buses purchased by the state must be accessible to the handicapped and senior citizen.
While on the surface such legislation would appear to rank with motherhood and apple pie, on closer examination it represents just another example of our lawmakers' inability to handle the difficult and potentially dangerous political issues.

At issue here is not just the right of the handicapped and senior citizen to the benefits of convenient transport systems. Also at issue is the unresolved question of just how far, and at what price, our lawmaker's will go to insure political friendship with special interest groups.
The line haul buses which must now be equipped with the lift mechanism to comply with the new state law will cost, on the average, up to $11,000 more per unit than comparable buses without the lift.

Considering that only a small percentage of the states handicapped citizens are confined to wheel chairs which the new mandated lifts were designed to accommodate, the state-wide cost of such very limited special interest legislation will certainly far exceed the potential value to the state's citizens.

While we would not question the general value of programs to ease the burdens faced by Michigan's handicapped citizen, we must question the wisdom of legislation that will ultimately cost the taxpayer millions, while providing a very few with, at best, a poor solution to the problems associated with transportation.

To us at Associated Newspapers, it would have made much more sense to simply expand on the concept of mini-buses throughout the state. Currently, several Michigan communities now provide door-to-door bus service for their senior or handicapped citizens.
The specter of wheelchair bound citizens waiting on the corner for the specially equipped buses to arrive, appears incongruous.
For the handicapped citizen, the choice between pick up at the home versus the obviously poor second choice of having to wait at the bus terminal or outdoor bus stop, really represents no choice at all. It will only be a matter of time until those newly-equipped line haul buses are recognized for what they really represent—the political clout possessed by well organized special interests.

Few pieces of legislation to come out of Lansing have pointed up so well the necessity for limits on government spending.

With our state's lawmakers unwilling or unable to deal with special interest groups who would tap the state treasury for their own advantage, it becomes obvious again that if the money is unlimited, politicians will engage in unlimited spending.

Lest we incur the wrath of the handicapped citizens of the state, it should be pointed out that we have consistently supported legislation which would help bring the handicapped citizen back into the mainstream of life. We support the handicappers right to engage in his or her chosen field, and we oppose those who would closet the handicapped from general view. But legislation of such dubious value as Public Act 140 should be opposed by any one truly interested in securing for all the equal sharing of the state's wealth toward the end of providing needed services.

Congress is currently engaged in a discussion of the relative value of mandating lifts for the nations buses.

Manufacturers and operators of buses are now telling the Washington lawmakers that the nation's handicapped will not use the new and costly transbus or the handicapped-accessible subways.

We reluctantly agree with industry when it claims the experiment will prove to be a horribly expensive mistake.

We think it is time for rational men to sit down and develop rational answers to the handicapped transportation problem. Unfortunately, the mandated lift-equipped linehaul buses does not appear to even be a candidate.

Involved citizen nominations sought

We, like most organizations and interested citizens, are often guilty of overlooking the positive while in 'hot pursuit' of the negative.
In an effort toward correcting this understandable, but poor characteristic of the human race, Associated Newspapers would like to reserve a portion of this page for recognizing the outstanding contributions of people within our circulation areas.
In the coming weeks we hope to provide readers with a look at the accomplishments of their neighbors. The person that we select for recognition, need not be an official or business leader. In our lives we often encounter people who have provided their communities with a part of themselves on a regular basis without any thought of self reward. Those are the people that Associated would salute for community involvement.

We invite our readers to send us their nominations for Involved Citizen of the Month.

It is not often that we find someone who is willing to work for nothing more than a pat on the back. We should be able to at least supply the pat.

Associated Newspapers is committed to community involvement. We believe there is no other way to insure that the cities and townships that we may call home, will survive.

Working together we can build a better community.

Energy crisis revisited

By ROBERT LAW
State Representative
36th District

Although it may seem to the general public that the "energy crisis" has abated, it is still very much with us in terms of high fuel prices and the uncertainty of future fuel supplies. Therefore, many of us are constantly seeking ways to encourage more efficient use of the fuels we use today.

One of the approaches which has become popular in recent years is vanpooling.

This involves the use of a multi-passenger van—supplied by an employer—for the purpose of transporting people to and from work. Most commonly, this involves specific communities and destinations, where a person lives in one city and works in another.

I have introduced a package of bills which I hope will stimulate more vanpooling programs in Michigan. Two have passed the House and are now in the Senate, while one remains in the House Taxation Committee.

House Bill 5374 places the responsibility for vanpooling in the State Highway Department.

The Department would develop a comprehensive state ridesharing program which would examine and recommend the use of various ridesharing methods with significant attention given to vanpooling. The Department would also help local agencies plan and set up ridesharing programs and, where appropriate, contract and provide matching funds for such programs.

House Bill 5373 would exempt any vanpooling program from regulation by the Public Service Commission, which regulates all motor carriers in Michigan. Much of the present success of vanpool programs comes from their informal and flexible nature, which would certainly be lost if the PSC were involved.

The bill defines a vanpool program as a nonprofit group of three or more vehicles sponsored, organized and approved by a business or state agency for its employees or members. The vehicles used would have to have a seating capacity of 15 passengers or less and be for travel between home and work, with the driver also being a "commuter."

House Bill 5674 would involve state incentives for vanpooling and, much of that would be spent anyway in terms of salaries for Highway Department employees and such. Any additional tax money spent to encourage vanpooling would be certainly worth the investment.

The third bill, HB 5670, would entitle people who buy gasoline for use in a vanpooling program to a refund of the gasoline tax paid on that fuel. The Taxation Committee is giving careful consideration to this bill.

Also, sufficient safeguards have been included to prevent abuse of the exemption. Again, though, I believe that any drop in revenue would be more than offset by the increased energy conservation that this program would encourage.

As I said earlier, vanpooling programs have enjoyed great success in some other states and in particular locations in Michigan. They are basically self-supporting, involve little or no cost to the public and in fact save money for the people who participate in them. For areas like western Wayne County where there is really no general, dependable form of public transportation, they provide an ideal travel option for commuters.

However, no matter what the program, no matter how well it is provided for, it will not be successful if people will use it. The fact remains that only a small percentage of today's workers are participating in some form of vanpooling program. The reason, of course, is our love affair with the private car.

The independence we have from our private transportation is a deeply-ingrained part of the American way of life, and we have seen time and time again that American won't give it up unless they are absolutely forced to. Even at the time of the Arab oil embargo nearly 5 years ago, when gasoline prices doubled, the American motorist stayed off the road only for a brief period of time. Now that everyone has accepted higher gas prices as a fact of life, we're back on the road in full force.

It may well be that the public will insist on having and driving private cars as long as fuel is available for them, no matter what the price. As long as that continues, the demand for various forms of mass transportation will continue to lag way behind our ability to provide it. Vanpooling provides an inexpensive method of transportation while providing savings for individuals and business alike.

Reasoning is 'rubbish'

To the Editor:

Something alarming is taking place in certain local Catholic churches.

Pulpits and church bulletins are being used to condemn the Equal Rights Amendment. Misguided priests and parishioners, in their zeal to outlaw legal abortions, have linked ERA with abortion.

A recent example reads "If this amendment is ratified, it could be a much bigger setback to the pro-life movement than the January 22, 1973 Supreme Court decision to legalize abortion-on-demand." This reasoning is pure rubbish. The ERA will not sanction abortion.

Since ERA touches only rights and concerns which both men and women share, and since men cannot bear children, ERA does not concern abortion. Also, the ERA will not confirm the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion. The decision was made without ERA and was based on the constitutional right to privacy and the definition of life rather than on the rights of women.

The Equal Rights Amendment should become the law of the land. It already carries the weight of Church teaching. "Every type of discrimination based on sex", said Vatican II, "is to be overcome and eradicated as contrary to God's intent".

Catholics interested in more information on the ERA should contact Catholics Act for ERA, 22 E. Van Buren St., Chicago, IL 60605.

Coalition for 21 files petitions

To the Editor:

The final filing of nearly a third of a million signatures was delivered today to the Secretary of State Elections Division to qualify the Coalition for 21 petitions for the November General Election that will raise the legal drinking age to 21.

Through your column we wish to thank the persons responsible.

The ten-month effort was accomplished by dedicated and committed volunteers of all ages who steadily secured the signatures from a willing public.

Approximately 12,000 circulators turned in more than one petition, many turning in several dozen or more. These enthusiastic workers came from local churches of all denominations, from several school groups and from community and civic groups.

The staff at the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, where all the petitions were checked and counted, wish to thank the individuals who, in many cases at great sacrifice of time, effort and resources, did the work in every county in the state.

To the county coordinators, the city ministerial associations, the local churches and the local school and community people, the Coalition for 21 leadership sends a most grateful word of appreciation.

Decadent capitalistic symbol

For years I have resisted the growing trend among suburban parents to jump into the back-yard swimming pool movement. The very thought of the decadent capitalistic status symbol, a swimming pool, in one's own back-yard, was enough to drive me straight to the basement sauna. But alas, I too have succumbed.

Thumbing through the newspaper one Sunday morning prior to making the decision on how to spend the rest of the day, a "Monday only" advertisement caught my eye. "Join the growing numbers of responsible parents who have provided their children with the healthful benefits of swimming, right in your own back-yard. This Monday only, all prices reduced....."

Now I'm not sure that the healthful benefits they were talking about meant the benefits Mom and Dad would gain from having the kids out back all day and not under foot, or if the benefits would be gained by the kids through the physical activity involved. But nonetheless my conscience was bothering me no little bit for having deprived my children of their democratic right to have their own pool.

I pushed the paper in front of Mom, who was in the process of losing a battle with 10-year-old Jennifer over who got the next piece of toast to pop up.

Wiping the peanut butter off her elbow, which had been inadvertently placed on the counter, she looked at the paper, and did a slow pan of the four kids gobbling down everything that didn't move fast enough to get out of the way. "That's not a bad idea," she said. "Maybe with a pool, we can get them out of the house long enough to clean the place."

With the decision now made, everyone except dad figured the hardest part was over.

Notwithstanding the fact that there must be at least 25 different types of pools, all with individual strong points, I managed to gain approval from the inspectors for the purchase of a unit which appeared relatively simple to install.

With the pool contained in six separate boxes, now resting in the backyard, the job of assembly was at hand.

Now I don't mind saying that I'm not too bad when it comes to mechanical jobs, but if you have ever leaped into someone else's pool, believe me, all is not as it appears.

After you apply your earth-moving skills to the spot where the pool will sit, you must utilize your high school geometry experience to properly position the structure. With that behind you, you start the process of connecting Point A to Point B.

With the pool assembled and being filled, you sit back and admire the results of your many hours of labor. In the background the kids are jumping up and down in their bathing suits, unable to restrain their collective urge to leap into their own backyard pool.

Two days later, when the last of the required 15,000 gallons of water is finally raising the level to the top of the pool, you have just identified another vested interest in the venture and buckle at the thought of the size of your next water bill.

The big day dawns bright and warm. No peanut butter mess in the kitchen. Instead, all the kids are in their suits and ready for the plunge.

That day is a beauty for mom and dad. Other than to check once in a while to see if all four are still on top of the water, the day makes the pool installation efforts all worth while.

Just the thought of all that healthful recreation the kids are benefiting from justifies the expense, the effort and the sore back.

As evening of the first day wears on, water-logged one-year-old Scott drags himself into the house with a long look on his face.

"What's wrong, Scott?" I ask.
"Oh nothing," he replies. "I'm just bored. There just isn't anything to do....."

Well, I can always stock it with Trout. Never could catch any of them anyway.

A friend is gone

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

"Mother is gone."
The young voice quivered over the long distance wire and my heart leaped to match that quiver.
Betty gone! My vibrant, intellectual, life-loving friend had parted the curtain on her next great adventure.
"But Joyce, think! Just think what tomorrow might bring!" The sun filtering through the screen and the creak of the old-fashioned porch swing: the buzz of tiny insects, and the wondrous enchantment of the blazing roses. So many years ago.
"How do you know there is a God?" A blazing fire, two wing-backed chairs drawn up beside the flame, the bookshelves filled with proposed answers to the quest of her mind.
"If there is a God why is there so much suffering? The lake lapping gently at our feet. Soft, fleecy clouds in the sky and little children, our little children, darting in and out of the water; happy, joyous laughter swirling about us.
So many questions she asked, so much knowledge she sought.

"Why, why, why?"
"Why, why, why?" I now ask. Did this precious friend find the answer to suffering those long months she suffered? When her soul finally left her pain-wracked body, did it fly out and meet her God...and did she find he was really there? Did he put his arm around her and say "Welcome home, Betty dear?"
I don't know. But I do know that somewhere out there that beautiful, loving, questing soul of my beloved friend is winging through the cosmos, asking "Why?" and admonishing the angels to "think." And whatever answers she finds, she will be sure to have more questions to ask. And even God will not be immune to them for she will be bound to ask, "If YOU are really there, dear God, why does man suffer?" And hopefully, God will take her by the hand and part the curtains so that she might find the answer.
Until we all know that answer, my dearest friend, "bye for now."

On the Brighter Side

"Ump is chump"

By JIM BRADLEY

The ump is a chump.
He's a wandering waif and friendless vagabond. An unloved arbiter who must make the decisions which ultimately lead to victory or defeat.
If he calls the batter out on a close play, the home team howls. If he spreads his palms face down, the players in the field question his visibility (and maybe his ancestry).
It's a no-win situation for every baseball umpire. And even though the job is thankless (except for maybe $7 to $10 a game), they seem to always be able to round up enough warm bodies to call balls and strikes.
Teammates usually drive away from their game in clusters of two and three players. The umpire usually walks alone to his car and drives off in solitude.
An umpire must be a strong personality - able to take constant badgering from the fans - and yet retain his sense of fair play and reasonableness.
I manage a men's slow pitch softball team and have much contact with the men in blue. In fact, I've played and coached the sport for a good many years and have seen more umpires than you can shake a stick at. (And that's just what some people would like to do, too!).
But through it all, I must admit I have an abiding admiration for umpires. Even the few fuzzy-eyed, dim-witted umpires I've come across have not diminished my respect for umpires as a whole.
Because I remember one experience I had as a 17-year-old that forever settled the fact I was not cut out to be an umpire.
As I recall, my father was in charge of an umpires association and scheduled umpers for a multitude of games in as many locations. I vaguely remember him frantically dialing the phone at the last minute many times to get a substitute when the regularly scheduled man-in-blue couldn't make it.
One day the substitute umpire couldn't make the game, either. My dad asked me if I would consider filling in for him in these desperate straits. Being a mild child, I meekly agreed - all the while knowing I shouldn't do it.
Not only was I quiet, I wore glasses - and that was a cardinal sin for umpires in those days. I couldn't wear glasses and ump the game - so I decided to shed my shades and try to "fake" my way through with fuzzy vision.

Now, I could see up close all right, it's only when I had to look off in the distance that I had trouble seeing. One time I had my glasses off and I said to my boyfriend, "Look over there at that little girl in a red dress."
He looked at me like I was crazy. "That's not a little girl in a red dress," he snorted, "that's a fire hydrant."
Well, my dad dropped me off at Hines Park and I umped this game between some young teen age boys. I was the only ump of the baseball game. In those days, you called balls and strikes behind the plate until a runner got on base and then you stationed yourself behind the pitcher's box to call balls and strikes and also ump the bases.
I make no bones about it. I unashamedly prayed that one team would win by more than 10 runs. I didn't want my umping to decide the game.
But that's exactly what happened.
With the team in the field leading by one run, the other team got the tying run on first base with two out. Sure enough, he tried to steal second. I was standing behind the pitcher's box and when the second sacker took the throw in front of the base he swung his glove at the runner who tried to dart around him.
Peering through fuzzy vision to begin with, my sight was further blocked by the second baseman. I threw my thumb in the air and called the runner out, ending the game. I thought the coach and players on the first base bench would lynch me on a nearby flagpole.
Ignoring the threats and references to my poor vision, (I silently agreed with them!), I sat on the hillside, hoping my father would pick me up before the losing team had second thoughts and returned to string me up.
I made up my mind right then that I would play the wonderful game of baseball and softball - but I would leave the umping to more courageous souls who were not visually impaired.
"I can't see you as an umpire," my wife chided me after we got married.
"I can't see it either," I replied, taking a dim view of the whole situation.

Profession of Dentistry Part 1

By RUSS TUTTLE
Director, Community Relations
Peoples Community Hospital Authority

For the past three years, I have in this column, devoted most of my space to medicine as practiced in hospitals by physicians and other professionals who serve as adjuncts in medical therapy.

I'm going to start today a series on another health care discipline which can have a profound effect on over-all well being; I have a specific reference to the profession of dentistry.

Many years ago, a Sumerian clay tablet was unearthed in Euphrates Valley during an archeological dig. Inscribed on the tablet was a theory that toothache was caused by the presence of a parasitic worm which had somehow made its way into the tooth.

The date assigned to this tablet was 5000 B.C. This theory continued for six and a half millennia - as late as 1540 A.D., Ambroise Pare, the founder of scientific surgery, gave his approval to the worm-pain relationship.

Herodotus, who is known as the father of history and who was a contemporary of Hippocrates, the father of medicine, provided the first general medicine.

"The art of medicine," he wrote in the 4th century B.C., is so practised (sic) in Egypt that there is found an individual healer for each individual distemper; some take charge of disorders of the eyes, others those of the head, others those of the teeth ..."

Apollonia, the daughter of a magistrate of Alexandria, after tortures which included the breaking and knocking out of all her teeth, suffered martyrdom at the stake for her faith about 249 A.D.

In Christian hagiology, St. Apollonia is the comforter and reliever of toothache sufferers. She is possibly the best know of 20 Christian saints invoked for relief of this age-old malady.

Perhaps no other ill to which the flesh is heir has elicited so many proposed remedies as have diseases of the mouth, and especially toothache.

Both pagans and early Christians resorted to incantations and charms. Prayers to the moon, running water and St. Apollonia were inscribed on paper by sufferers, and worn about the neck or over the heart.

Among early toothache prescriptions to be taken internally were: the milk of an ass; bear's gall; and a mixture of crayfish eyes, salt-peter and sugar, dissolved in lemon juice.

A helpful mouthwash to relieve an aching tooth could be compounded from frogs cooked with wine and vinegar. For inflammation of the gums, a recommended mouthwash consisted of a mixture of goat's dung and goose droppings, or the brain of a hare cooked in wine.

As hard as it may be to accept, there remains to this day some cultures which ascribe all illness as having demonologic origins. This would include certain Bosnian gypsies and isolated groups in India, China, Arabia, and Madagascar.

The advent of modern dentistry can be dated to the early 18th century. A Frenchman, Pierre Fauchard, is generally accepted as the father of this discipline.

In 1728, he wrote an epochal two-volume series on dentistry in which he dealt comprehensively with a mastery far ahead of his time, with practically every phase of the art.

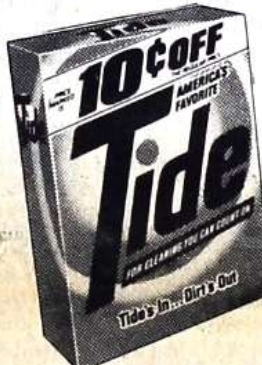

Fauchard's pioneer treatise laid the groundwork for modern scientific instruction. Hence, French dentists enjoyed a supremacy which would continue for about 100 years before the Americans caught up and then surpassed them in knowledge of dental anatomy, therapy, histology, pathology et al.

The French were the first to develop a method of making artificial teeth from porcelain - a development which was to be refined in later years for making complete sets of dentures and restorations which resemble natural teeth.

One of George Washington's dentists, John Greenwood, not only made dentures for the General, but in 1790 after the War of the Revolution, Greenwood invented a foot-powered drill to be used in excavating dental caries (cavities).

From the parasitic worm theory of 7000 years ago, to Fauchard, to the primitive foot drill of 1790, dentistry as an art and science has taken quantum steps in its development.

I plan in the next few columns to discuss dentistry as we know it today via a series of interviews with a local practitioner, Sheldon Eichler, DDS.

Effective life saver

Smoke detectors let you sleep easier

Suddenly, it's here in a big way—the life saving smoke detector—alarm for the home—already standing guard each night for millions of sleeping American families. And night time is when the alarms are needed most. That is when most of the more than 5,000 annual U.S. residential deaths from fires have occurred.

Now you can do something to help protect your family from this tragedy. If you haven't done so, install smoke warning alarms in your home. Some 35 million have been sold since their introduction only about five years ago.

An official of the U.S. Commerce Department's National Fire Prevention and Control Administration said: "We believe they're the single most effective piece of equipment ever devised to prevent fire deaths."

Smoke detectors are designed to provide an early warning when fire begins. Most victims actually die from the smoke and fumes of the fire before the flames reach them.

Regulations in many states already require the use of smoke alarms, usually in new houses, mobile homes and housing developments. The federal government will not approve a VA or FGA new housing loan unless the structure has detectors.

Smoke detectors operate on either the ionization of photoelectric principle. Ionization detectors contain a radiation source that creates an electrical field. The detector reacts to a disturbance of this field by smoke particles, setting off an alarm.

In the photoelectric type the smoke particles reflect light onto a photocell, sounding the alarm.

The alarms give off a loud squawk that should wake most occupants even though they may be sound asleep, if a detector is located close to the bedrooms.

Some detectors run on batteries, the others on household current. Batteries usually have to be replaced about once a year and some detectors have a low battery trouble signal.

Detectors which operate on household current come in models which may be plugged into an existing outlet or be permanently wired into the home's electrical system. The permanent wiring should be done by an electrician.

As the popularity of smoke detectors has grown, so has the number of models and brands on the market, making it more difficult for consumers to choose.

When you select a detector be sure it has been approved by a major recognized testing laboratory. Underwriters Laboratories (UL), for example, has approved some 120 brand-name detectors.

Competition has driven prices down, with costs of detectors now ranging from approximately $15 to about $45 or $50 at hardware, department and other stores.

Experts recommend that you have a system made up of at least two smoke detectors—one battery operated ionization detector and one plug-in photo-electric detector—supplementing each other with their differing sensitivities.

Kensington's Island Queen

Kensington's Island Queen tours park's Kent Lake

This summer is a good time to enjoy a trip aboard the Island Queen, a sternwheeler which makes 45-minute tours around Kent Lake in Kensington Metropark near Brighton and Milford.

James A. Presley of Brighton is the captain and is assisted by Ralph Montrose.

Ken Smith, assistant park superintendent, pointed out that this year the Island Queen has a number of improvements.

The pilot house and steering station have been moved topside. Passenger capacity has been increased from 60 to 80 persons (plus two crew members). Old school-bus type seats were replaced with oak contour benches running fore and aft thus rearranging the seating on the lower deck, along with the installation and refinement of stereo and public address systems for greater passenger enjoyment.

Moonlight excursions have been added in addition to other private charters available before and after regular scheduled tours.

Trips for the general public leave from the boat rental dock from 12 noon to 6 p.m. daily in the summer, weekends in the fall. Rates are $1 for adults, 50 cents for children (ages 12 and under) and 50 cents for senior citizens 62 years of age or older.

The popular Island Queen was introduced at Kent Lake in Kensington Metropark on May 26, 1956. It is 60 feet in length and powered by a single diesel engine, which turns the 8-foot paddlewheel. This is a U.S. Coast Guard approved vessel and several improvements were made based on their recommendations. Three million or more persons have enjoyed the popular water cruises in the past 22 years.

For information or private charter contact Kensington Metropark at 685-1561 (Milford).

Garden Doctor says...

This week the Garden Doctor talks about:

Q: Some branches on our crabapple tree are covered with webbing that contains dozens of hairy worms; what should we do?

A: If there are only a couple affected branches, you can prune them out and destroy the worms. If several branches are affected, spray with Thuricide, Dipel or Diazinon. These worms are called fall webworms.

Q: Our lawn has some grassy weeds with light green leaves. They grow much faster than the rest of the lawn and pull up very easily; will dandelion killer control this?

A: No, dandelion killer does not control grassy weeds. What you're describing sounds like yellow nutsedge. Nutsedge is apparent now in the lawn but is not most efficiently controlled this late in the season because it has already developed underground tubers. Note the areas of the lawn where it's growing and spray these zones with a herbicide containing DSMA next May as soon as the leaf blades can be detected among the turf blades.

Q: We want to stock upon wood for our fireplace, will we spread Dutch Elm Disease, if we collect elm wood now?

A: Elm logs with bark still attached should certainly not be brought into the neighborhood now. This is avoided because the bark beetles which carry the disease will be migrating from the diseased wood to healthy trees during August. If the wood you collect has no bark on it then it cannot host the beetles. Any elm wood collected in the fall should either have the bark removed or be completely burned before next May, the other migration time from diseased wood to healthy trees.

Q: My potted geranium has yellow leaves on the bottom, what does that mean?

A: Geraniums thrive when their roots are cool and moist. When they're grown in containers, especially small containers, the opposite conditions tend to occur and the bottom leaves yellow. To keep the roots cool, sink the pots into the soil, group them, or move to a semi-shady location. Check daily for dry soil and water as needed.

Society's lollipop sale to help 'lick' cancer

Sometimes selling lollipops can be as much fun as eating them.

Starting Aug. 1, the American Cancer Society will begin "Help Us Lick Cancer" month with a lollipop selling contest.

Fifty thousand red and white lollipops will be sold by volunteers at various locations throughout Wayne county. The lollipops also will be distributed at banks, fairs, restaurants, theaters, grocery and department stores.

Prizes will be awarded to the volunteers who have sold the most lollipops, and to those who have recruited the most people to sell them.

In mid-September, both the winning volunteers and all others who have helped sell lollipops will be invited to a free "Lick Cancer" disco party held in their honor. During the party, winners will be announced and prizes awarded.

All proceeds from the "Help Us Lick Cancer" month will support cancer research, education, and service programs.

Anyone interested in participating by entering the contest, should call 336-0030.

Mahalak reports

Lawmakers concentrate on highway safety

There has been action in the State Legislature this year on various safety bills, especially highway safety, according to State Rep. Edward Mahalak (D-38th District). The Romulus Democrat added that this year's legislation has included a ban of double-bottom tankers carrying hazardous materials and to regulate other tankers more tightly.

Approved by the legislature just before summer recess was a bill to immediately ban the gasoline-carrying double-bottom tankers in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, except to supply terminals between the hours of 12 midnight and 6 a.m. and on routes and at times set by the State Police, he said.

The double-bottoms would be banned statewide by 1981. Large single bottoms would likewise be banned in five years.

The same bill also would limit gasoline cargos on single-bottom tankers to no more than 9,500 gallons, Mahalak explained, adding that the restriction would apply to all highly-flammable liquids—those with a flash point of 70 degrees or less.

"The big tankers have proven to be a serious safety and fire hazard on Michigan roads," he said. "There have been numerous spectacular and sometimes fatal accidents involving the huge carriers. These accidents hit their peak last year, bringing demands for tighter regulations and a ban on the tandem haulers."

"It was widely felt that the state's highways would be much safer if gasoline-carrying double-bottom tankers were prohibited and if all carriers were restricted to 9,500 gallons of hazardous liquids," he said.

There also were some arguments that the legislation would result in higher gasoline prices for motorists. However, some representatives of the gasoline distribution industry contend that transportation costs have little, if any, effect on the pump price of gasoline, Mahalak continued.

Approved at the same time were two companion bills, one of which would lower the permitted height of vehicles carrying hazardous materials.

The tankers have been allowed a height of 13 feet-6 inches. The bill approved by the legislature would reduce this to 11 feet-8½ inches. This would, for the present, apply only to new tankers, but would apply to all tankers in five years.

Studies have indicated that tandem trucks could be redesigned in a way that would increase their stability and hence their safety on the highway. One of the major design problems with tankers appears to be their height. By reducing the height of the tankers, the center of gravity is lowered, making them less likely to tip over and making them safer, Mahalak said.

The other bill recognizes that the restrictions of the other two measures could pose some financial problems for the carriers in moving away from the double-bottoms and into lower heights.

The bill provides for an appropriation which would be used for loans to motor carriers who have obtained a certificate of necessity from the Public Service Commission. The loans would be made to assist the carriers in complying with the new provisions of law.

The interest rate on the loans would be a low 4 per cent and the loans would have to be repaid within five years, Mahalak said, adding that the loans are seen as a necessity.

"Without such a low-interest loan program to assist the gasoline-carrying industry to comply with the new laws, many gasoline distributors and haulers would face financial hardship and could even be forced out of business," he added. "This could result in disruption of distribution and possibly energy shortages because many of the carriers involved would not be able to operate their existing vehicles, yet might not be able to arrange financing to purchase new vehicles."

UN ambassador to visit Detroit

Andrew Young, the globe-trotting American ambassador to the United Nations, will be coming to Detroit in September. The Metropolitan Detroit YMCA is sponsoring a "salute to Detroit" as part of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the YMCA in the Motor City.

The Ambassador has agreed to address a dinner to be held at Cobo Hall on Sept. 29. The announcement was made by Jack Otto, Chairman of the Metropolitan YMCA, who noted that actor Lou Gossett Jr. will be the master of ceremonies for the $50 a ticket dinner.

The dinner and surrounding activities are being planned by a special committee of the YMCA, headed by Dr. William G. Anderson, a Detroit osteopathic physician and surgeon and boyhood friend of Andrew Young.

According to Dr. Anderson, the Ambassador and Gossett are donating their services. Ambassador Young credits the YMCA with helping him during his own youth. Young was a civil rights leader during the turbulent 1960s and is one of the highest ranking blacks in the Carter administration.

YMCA President Robert W. Davis noted that the dinner and salute to Detroit are non-political events, designed simply as a way for the YMCA to say thanks to the city for aiding in the organization's efforts to help Detroit young people.

Tickets for the dinner may be obtained through any branch of the metropolitan YMCA or by calling 868-1946.

They become 'VIPers'

Class helps seniors cope with vision loss

By CONNIE MILFORD
ANP Staff Writer

Waiting for a red light, walking on a green, stepping off a curb, washing dishes, typing a letter...

All these normal everyday activities, which most people take in stride as part of a daily routine, become suddenly strange, if one is blind. And even frightening if one also is elderly and alone.....

Acting on the suggestion of one senior citizen who is blind and who had to face these problems, Westland Department of Aging Assistant Director Sylvia Kozorosky got together with Alice Rafferty of the Detroit Society for the Blind and launched a pilot program to help out visually impaired seniors.

Starting out as a club, the group has renamed itself a class for VIPs (Visually Impaired Persons) and, with the services of a teacher from Detroit and a paraprofessional, are set to relearn the independent life.

The 13 people involved this year have been wildly successful, Ms. Kozorosky reports.

"Our goal is to make them more independent and more confident of themselves. Some people already have gone on to our other programs here at the Senior Friendship Center, such as knitting and dancing, and that's what we wanted them to do."

Tasks which the VIPs had to learn to do all over again, according to George Raub Sr., who had the original idea, were "the art of homemaking, sewing, how to defrost a refrigerator, how — with safety — to pour hot liquids and how to read traffic signals and step off curbs to cross the street."

Instructors also taught them to read Braille and to use white canes. The Lions Club recently took them to see the Leader Dog School in Rochester and has donated such items as Braille watches and bingo game cards.

Class members have become so enthusiastic, Ms. Kozorosky reported, that even though the teacher has gone for the summer, the group members still meet every Friday.

One spirited lady, Elizabeth Anderson, says she bakes her own pies and has signed up for the knitting class at the center.

"I hope to get enough people together for a bowling group this fall," she added, saying that the only thing which irks her about being blind is: "I miss getting out to the shopping center alone—and I certainly missed the Shriners parade!"

Good as it is, the program could shut off this September, the assistant director warns, unless some new visually-impaired seniors hasten to sign up. The Detroit Society for the Blind will only provide a teacher for a new group of people.

"Our first group has graduated," she explained.

Since the group was reclassified from a club to a class, she said: "We can now accept people from all over the area—Wayne, Garden City, Livonia—as well as from Westland."

The only stipulations are that they are senior citizens who are seriously visually impaired.

The program is well worthwhile, according to Ms. Anderson, who exclaims: "There is no reason for a senior citizen in Westland to be lonely again, when they can come here and enjoy the programs offered at the Friendship Center."

All it takes, she said, "is that little extra bit of effort to get going..."

Seniors willing to make that little extra effort and to insure there will be another class for the blind, should contact Sylvia Kozorosky at 722-7632.

A VIPer

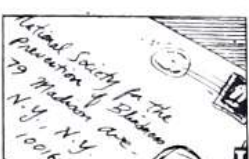

Visually impaired seniors have found they are VIPs through a class being offered at the Westland Friendship Center. Developed by the city's assistant aging director, Sylvia Kozorosky (right) and with the help of the Detroit Society for the Blind, the class helps VIPs (Visually Impaired Persons) to cope with the things sighted people take for granted. The class helps seniors like Nancy Aikman (left) relearn their independence. The class is not restricted to just Westland seniors. Those VIPs interested in the program can contact Mrs. Kozorosky at 722-7628.

Psychology

Psychologists suggest older people might feel younger if they participated in more community activities.

Another way people can feel younger is to take care of their health. One affliction many elderly people have is cataracts, which is curable in most cases. For free booklets on cataracts and other aspects of eye care, write your state Prevention of Blindness Society or the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, at 79 Madison Avenue, N.Y., N.Y. 10016. This is the Society's 70th year of saving sight.

At the Studio Theatre, Tom Stoppard's "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead" and Edward Bond's "The Sea," tentatively scheduled for November and March, both for the benefit of the Don Blakely Scholarship Fund for undergraduates.

Approved sign

More than a million Wayne County CBers will get a helpful hand along the local highways through the Wayne County Sheriff's Star Ship Command program. The signs, similar to ones erected along out-county Michigan expressways by the State Police, will make it easier for motorists to contact the Sheriff's Patrol in case of accidents, or even a flat tire. The signs will be posted at both ends of I-75, I-275, I-96 and I-94, starting at the county lines. Patrolman K. Daley (from left), Insp. Richard Winder and Patrolman Larry Waetjen, designers of the sign, were the originators of the Star Ship Command program.

Discover metroparks; Join 'Fun Campaign'

Area residents throughout the counties of Wayne, Macomb, Oakland, Livingston and Washtenaw are discovering something new at the Huron-Clinton metroparks this summer.

As they enter the park, a bright, orange sign declares: "Join a Fun Campaign: Visit All 10 Huron-Clinton Metroparks".

Details of this special campaign are available in a small orange booklet. Those who complete the tour through all 10 metroparks during 1978 and have the book properly signed will earn a free 1979 Season Pass, (the annual vehicle entry permit worth $5, and a Special Park Support Award.

The purpose of the program is to encourage park visitors to learn more about all 10 Huron-Clinton metroparks, to visit them and to use their facilities according to William E. Kreger, who represents Wayne County of the Board of Commissioners of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

"Each member of the metropark family of 10 parks is unique, has a different personality and offers some special features", said John H. Dillon, Washtenaw County's representative on the seven-member HCMA Board of Commissioners and a marketing specialist with the Adistra Corporation of Plymouth.

Dillon believes that each metropark has some unique features or natural resources that will challenge area residents to visit metroparks a bit farther from their home — or a metropark that is different than the one they usually visit — just for the fun of it — and to see something new and have an enjoyable outing.

Park officials point out that while often weekends at the parks are crowded, visits during the week might be increased — and often the individual or family may enjoy the visit more and benefit from improved service by park staffs due to less crowded conditions.

There are 15,275 acres of recreational land available for citizen use at the metroparks, which include Metro Beach Metropark (740 acres) near Mt. Clemens, Stony Creek Metropark (3,900 acres) near Rochester-Utica, Marshbank Metropark (115 acres) southwest of Pontiac, Kensington Metropark (4,350 acres) near Milford; Hudson Mills Metropark (1,415 acres) Dexter-Huron Metropark (125 acres), and Delhi Metropark (45 acres) each northwest of Ann Arbor; Lower Huron Metropark (1,200 acres) near Belleville, Willow Metropark (1,525 acres) near New Boston and Willow Oakwoods Metropark (1,770 acres) near Flat Rock.

Dillon said that based on his recent visits to other regional park agencies, the Huron-Clinton Metropark system is outstanding, one of the few of its kind in the country.

Workshops will assist women returning to work

Help for women contemplating entering the job market will be offered by Washtenaw Community College in three special workshops this summer.

Taught at the Ypsilanti Center at 411 Florence St., the Job Skills Workshops will concern three specific problem areas—turning homemaking skills into employable assets; interviewing employers and writing "creative" resumes.

Barb Bargo, career consultant, will teach the classes to be offered on three consecutive Thursday evenings—Aug. 3, Aug. 10 and Aug. 17 from 7 to 9 p.m. The fee is $3, except for in-district senior citizens who may enroll at no charge. The public is welcome. Advanced registrations are requested.

The first session will help participants analyze their homemaking skills, develop a skills profile and show how to "recycle" these skills as employable assets.

The second session will provide techniques for successful interviewing, showing not only how to approach the situation, but also discussing which questions should be asked and what answers are important.

Session 3 will demonstrate how in resume writing one should replace a "work history" format with a

"skills" pattern to make the resume work for a prospective employee, not against.

For registration and other information call 482-2230.

Of domestic assault

UCS directory answers questions of victims

Long-range assistance and immediate help now are available to victims of domestic violence in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, thanks to the efforts of United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit.

UCS has come up with an envelop-slim directory, a compact how-to-and-where-to-find-help booklet that offers answers for abused children and adults.

Entitled "Help for the Victims of Domestic Violence", the directory is only a part of UCS's expansion of help for the abused child and adult. A special grant from the United Foundation has enabled UCS to expand already existing services involved in aid for the abused as well as establish the first Family Trouble Clinic.

The new clinic is working with two Detroit Police precincts and is located at 11000 W. McNichols. The daily service gives help for the troubled family after the police are summoned on a home violence situation.

According to UCS executive vice-president Richard F. Huegli: "The American family is undergoing a revolution. The change is in the lifestyle of families, and we have to tailor our services to those who need help living in that new lifestyle."

"Today's families do not necessarily bear resemblances to the family we knew 50 years ago. Statistics show that one of every seven children today is being raised by one parent."

He added that the family problems which once were whispered over the back fence are erupting into the open. People are reaching out for help which they once believed impossible to get.

He went on to say that even HEW is having difficulty setting up the White House Conference, which was planned for the end of 1979, because of basic conflicts over the definition of family. They are trying to come to terms with whether government assistance to families in stress should be neutral to all kinds of families, or slanted in favor of the traditional two-parent family.

"We believe that the composition of a troubled family is not the primary consideration. If children are being abused, if wives are being abused, or if anyone in that family unit is being abused, it is vitally important that help be available and immediately," he continued.

Today a family unit may be one parent — it may be an aunt or an uncle or a grandparent rearing children and trying their best to fulfill the role of a parent. Problems from this family spill over into the community, and society pays the price — not to mention the tremendous price the person pays who is involved in that abuse.

Huegli said that along with the distribution of this 14-page directory will be a concerted public campaign to get the word to those who need help.

"It is of the utmost importance that we let the public know this kind of help is available. Contrary to general belief, domestic violence has no 'typical victim.' The abuse comes from every ethnic background, income group, educational level, age, race, religion and marital status. It takes place in Detroit and Bloomfield Hills."

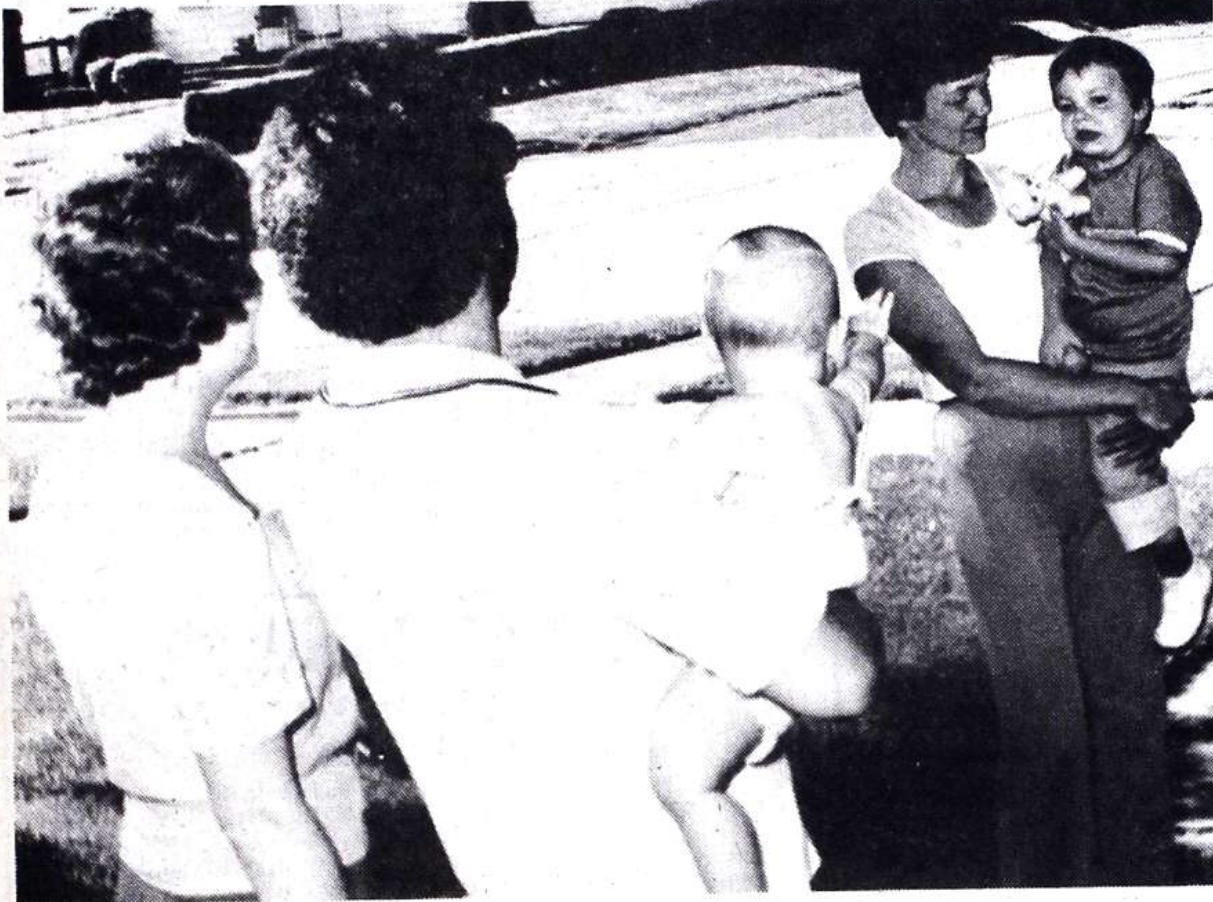

The new directory lists specific service centers for the three counties. It also provides a listing of emergency shelters for those in danger of being hurt or those who have been hurt. The problem of runaways is included along with specific help.

Financial aid is explained for those who feel that they are caught in an abusive situation because of financial need. There is particular emphasis on sources of help for child abuse. Not only the public agencies, but other sources of assistance from volunteer organizations, are included.

Copies will be available through police and sheriff's departments in the tri-county area, school counselors, legal aid offices, libraries, some churches and religious organizations, nurses and medical associations, judges of all the courts, children's clinics and women's service centers and all departments of Social Services.

Anyone wishing a directory and unable to locate one should call UCS' Community Information Service at 833-3430 or a toll-free number for outside Detroit of 1-800-552-1183.

Parents have been known to talk about needing a vacation from their children. But where does the parents of a retarded or handicapped youngster go, if they'd like to get away from it all for a short period of time? To the Northwestern Guidance Clinic in Garden City which is coordinating Wayne County's "foster parents" program. The program allows parents like Mrs. Jane Wright of Melvindale a brief rest from the stress of dealing with the special child care problems. Mrs. Wright (second from left) turned over her nine-year-old son Matthew, who suffers from Down's Syndrome (mongolism), to his weekend foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Daksiewicz of Garden City, for a stay July 14-15. Helping to welcome Matthew was the Daksiewicz' natural daughter, Brooke. The program has been recognized by the National Association of Counties. For further information on the program contact Phyllis Santo, director, at 425-6110.

Keeping cool:

Some tips on air conditioning

Getting the most comfort for the least money is the name of the game when it comes to buying a room air conditioner.

Smart shoppers — those who know the secret to buying air conditioning — can do exactly that: Spend less to buy, less to operate, and be more comfortable.

Here's how. Buy a smaller capacity unit that circumstances dictate. In most cases, an air conditioner with 1,000 to 1,500 BTUH less capacity than one with too much cooling capacity.

The reason is that comfort depends upon temperature and humidity. A room air conditioner dehumidifies only while the compressor is operating. The compressor of a smaller unit operates almost continuously, maintaining excellent dehumidification as it controls temperature. And, such continuous operation tends to use less energy than a larger unit that frequently cycles on and off.

Further, a unit that is oversized for the area to be cooled tends to run infrequently, thus allowing humidity to build up. This results in a "clammy" feeling.

The tendency in the past, among both dealers and consumers, has been to estimate the cooling needs of a room based on the area to be cooled and then add a little for good measure. As a result, many units now in use are over-sized.

Added to that is the trend among homeowners to "tighten up" their homes with insulation and weatherstripping. Usually, such "tightening up" is done to reduce heating bills in the winter, but it also helps hold down cooling requirements in the summer. For example, when replacing an existing unit of 7,500 BTUH, the buyer may be well advised to talk to his dealer about a replacement unit in the 6,000 to 6,500 BTUH range.

If you're buying an air conditioner for the first time, and don't know what size to get, take the following information to a knowledgeable dealer and let him know that you know that the slightly undersized unit is better.

First, how large is the area to be cooled? Is it well-insulated? How many windows are there, and are they weatherstripped? If it's a bedroom, will it be necessary to cool it during the day, or at night only? (If you cool only at night, it may be possible to cut the cooling requirements drastically.)

Historically, room air conditioners are rated by their BTUH

(British Thermal Units per Hour) capacities and by the amount of electricity they use. "Small units generally refer to those operating on 115 volts and delivering cooling capacities of 7,000 BTUH or less. These usually are used for single-room cooling.

"Medium" units also operate on 115-volt current and may range in capacity from 7,000 to about 13,000 BTUH. These ordinarily are best used in multi-room applications, such as living-dining room combinations.

Generally speaking, "large" capacity units operate on 230 volts. They generally range from about 13,000 BTUH and go as high as 32,000 BTUH. Such units often can cool more than one room, and the larger models sometimes are used for light commercial applications.

Delinquent tax fund boots budgets

A new Wayne County program will pump more than $25 million in delinquent property tax funds to every city, township, village and school district in the county (excluding Detroit) before the end of August, according to County Treasurer Raymond J. Wojtowicz. "More than half of the funds will go for education in Wayne County," Wojtowicz said. "Some $14.1 million is earmarked for the 39 suburban public school systems, four intermediate school districts and Wayne County and Schoolcraft Community Colleges."

Wojtowicz made the announcement at a news conference immediately following the public sale of $25,060,000 in general obligation tax notes (Series 1978). The three-year tax notes will finance the county's new "100 Percent Tax Payment Fund" authorized by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners under Public Act 206. "This $25 million tax distribution should not be confused with the county's current fiscal crisis and projected $9 to $12 million deficit," Wojtowicz emphasized. "This tax windfall is made possible by a delinquent tax revolving fund recently established by the Board of Commissioners to ease cash-flow problems and simplify budget planning in county municipalities and school districts. The revolving fund will be financed by the sale of the public notes to banks and other financial institutions. The note holders will be repaid when the delinquent taxes, plus interest and penalties, are collected by the county. Under the new program, local taxing units will receive a 100 percent reimbursement from the county for the entire amount of their taxes due early in the year, the treasurer explained. "In the past, local officials had to wait for delinquent taxes to trickle in," he said. "Taxpayers can pay their taxes through the end of February of each taxable year. After that deadline, local tax rolls are turned over to the county treasurer for auditing, verification and collection." Without this new program, local taxing units might have had to wait for 26 months or longer (May 1981) before they were reimbursed for 1977 delinquent taxes. Steve Berecz, treasurer of Brownstown Township and president of the Association of Treasurers of Wayne County, at the news conference stated: "I commend the Wayne County Board of Commissioners and the county treasurer for working closely with us to establish this valuable new tax reimbursement program. It will give a great boost to outcounty treasuries and help all local officials plan their budgets better." Wojtowicz said the new system has the "overwhelming support of local municipal treasurers."

"Next year we'll be able to get the funds to the communities much earlier," he said. "This year we're running later in the year because the delinquent tax fund was just approved by the commissioners in April." The new revolving fund also provides that, if any delinquent tax is not eventually recovered by the county (for example, in the event of a tax sale), the local taxing unit must repay the county with interest. Eligible taxing units include the county, school districts, villages, townships, special assessment and drain districts and all cities except Detroit. Detroit is excluded from the fund because it presently collects its own delinquent taxes, but could become eligible. Wojtowicz said the county plans to repay the note holders in three major installments of $10 million, $10 million and $5 million on May 1, 1979, 1980 and 1981 respectively. Of the delinquent taxes for 1977, $5,365,065 is due to Wayne County. The figure for cities is $4,763,418 and will be divided as follows: Belleville, $27,277; Inkster, $275,286; Romulus, $219,649; Wayne, $117,344; and Westland, $511,758. The amount due townships is $727,148, and will be divided as follows: Canton Township, $177,778; Huron Township, $88,957; Sumpter Township, $65,742; and Van Buren Township, $69,819. Town and Country Insulation is named dealer-applicator of Insulspray

A Romulus firm, Town and Country Insulation of 27501 Ecorse Road, has been appointed a fully-certified dealer and applicator for a new type of high-efficiency foam insulation material by Life Distributing of Detroit, distributor of the Insulspray foam system recently developed by Borden Chemical.

foam insulation that is cutting heat and air conditioning losses in both homes and commercial buildings," explained Guy Marvin, president of Town & Country Insulation Co. "It is providing substantial savings in fuel and electricity costs for users as well as conserving energy at a time when supplies are becoming short."

dealer, a contractor and his staff must spend a minimum of five days in an intensive instructional program given by the distributor in his area with back-up from Borden technical personnel. These five days include at least three in a classroom setting using training manuals, demonstration models, actual equipment, and a wide range of audio-visual aids.

The balance of the time is spent on the site of actual jobs in progress. After completing his training, the new contractor is certified for only six months. After that period, he must return to distributor headquarters for a mandatory one-day refresher course catching up on any new foam technology and procedures before he can be re-certified.

Now in ample supply in this area in the face of nationwide shortages of most other insulating materials, urea-based foam has been gaining thousands of new homeowner converts. The foamed-in-place substance is injected from the exterior into the wall cavities of existing structures to provide the highest insulation value of any approved residential insulation product. Insulspray's "R" value - a laboratory measurement of insulating ability or resistance to heat-cold loss - is 4.3 at 75 degrees, rating well above rock-wool, cellulose or fiber glass. "The system is a new concept in

Because the skill of new contractor-applicators is essential to the problem-free installation of foam, Borden Chemical has one of the more elaborate training programs for new contractors in the entire industry. To become a certified Insulspray

More than 94 percent of drivers are insured

More than 94 percent of Michigan's automobiles are insured, according to Secretary of State Richard H. Austin. "A sample of all Michigan motor vehicles taken several months after the 1977 license plate renewal deadline showed that the number of uninsured vehicles has remained almost unchanged since before the adoption of No-Fault."

wide picture of automobile insurance coverage in Michigan, it suggests that the proportion of uninsured vehicles is much larger in Detroit than in the rest of the state. Before No-fault, the highest concentration of uninsured vehicles, according to department records, was in the Detroit metropolitan area. This situation remains unchanged. Despite concern expressed over the insurance status of vehicles being registered by mail, a separate study showed that few such vehicles are uninsured - only about 1 percent. Austin said: "I am pleased to find the department's system of certifying proof of insurance is working satisfactorily. However, I hope the legislature will respond to the recent Supreme Court decision and adopt legislation to make certain that automobile insurance will be available to everyone at reasonable rates."

White Castle makes 'successful invasion'

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

It was a dramatic invasion. Over 20,000 of the uniquely squared two-inch wide hamburgers with the precision holes hit Canton Township three weeks ago.

And it looks like there will be lots more coming, according to officials of the White Castle where the patented miniature hamburgers have been selling at a record-setting pace.

They are distinctly smaller in size than any other commercially merchandised hamburger. But so is the price.

For a mere 20-cents you can gulp down the square patty that resembles a saltine cracker with five well-calculated punched out holes to ensure an even and speedily cooked product.

And from all appearances the noticeably white, brick restaurant will be an intricate part of the community, despite recent heated controversy over whether residents could "stomach" the physical appearance of the eatery.

During the last few months when the building was still in the construction stage, a planning commissioner resigned from his seat.

Resident Gus Matzo, whose term on the commission was near its expiration date anyway, said that the eatery was a major reason as to why he cut short his township board appointed stint.

"I just thought that if that's the first thing that residents have to look at when they come driving into Canton, that this community isn't developing the way I had in mind," said Matzo.

He voted against the eatery locating just east of the I-275 freeway and on the south side of Ford Road.

"It's a God awful looking thing, and doesn't fit in with the aesthetically pleasing businesses that we have been trying to plan for Canton," added Matzo.

Other commissioners and township board members had the same sentiments as Matzo, but because the restaurant met all township codes and site plan regulations it was accepted.

Apparently though, the eatery has now been accepted by the community residents themselves, as it is becoming increasingly evident by witnessing at least 15 cars parked outside the diner at any given time of the day or night.

"It sure looks like somebody wanted us to come," said Donna Hauk, looking out over the counter to view customers lined up in herd-like proportions.

The district supervisor for the 24-hour operation says township officials were under the wrong impression of what a White Castle is all about.

"I think they thought we were going to be like the five-stool hang outs that existed some 40 years ago," she speculated.

Today's White Castle, she notes has 10 times the seating capacity of the original eatery built in Wichita Kansas in 1921. The total projection for employees now ranges from 60 to 100 employees per each diner.

There are 21 of the fast food chain diners in the state, with Canton being the 21st site, and the farthest venture out in western Wayne county, say officials of the operation.

While by no stretch of the imagination could one term the small burger a delicacy, Mrs. Hauk says that people identify the restaurant by the "unique hamburgers."

The uniquely shaped patties have not always had the holes, nor have they always been square.

Mrs. Hauk said that in 1940 an employee devised the burger as it is presently noted. "He was always coming in late, so the story goes, and he never had his hamburgers cooked for the customers of the midnight shift."

Apparently, she said, he needed to cook the burgers faster. So he started punching holes in them and making them thinner. In doing so he found that the hamburgers cooked faster and more evenly with the holes.

There was also no need to flip the patties over. Voila! the original white castle was born, and soon after patented.

She doesn't see a need to compete with the "other places." As emphasis she notes that White Castle does not serve breakfasts.

Apparently there is no need to. On the grand opening day they had more than they could handle, she says. Hungry customers were lined up down to the freeway.

"And we didn't even send out mailings to occupants like we usually do," she said. "We were a little worried before we came because we wondered if we'd be accepted out here as well as we have been in the Detroit area."

She's no longer concerned over being accepted.

Most who frequent the diner are local residents or people from neighboring communities.

What brings them to the diner? Westland resident Mildred Simon seemed to sum up the general opinion of those interviewed last Thursday. "I just like the greasy little burgers."

"You've got to admit they're one of a kind."

One of a kind

Donna Hauk feels that a white castle burger is a one of a kind patty. The district supervisor for the fast food chain said that customers must feel the same way. Since the diner's grand opening in Canton Township three weeks ago they have sold an average of 20,000 square, hole punched hamburgers daily. "You can't get a hamburger anymore for what we charge," she asserted. The hamburger is distinctly smaller than other chainsold sandwiches but so is the price — 20 cents each.

NBD OFFERS TWO NEW WAYS TO IMPROVE YOUR EARNINGS.

1 New short-term, high return Money Market Certificates.

Now you have the opportunity to buy NBD's new six-month Money Market Certificates that pay a high interest rate, equal to the latest average auction rate for 6-month U.S. Treasury Bills. Certificates are available in any dollar amount of $10,000 or over. The current annual rate for six-month Treasury Bills is 7.497 per cent. By comparison, the maximum annual rate currently available to commercial bank customers for periods from 90 days to six months is 5½%.

NBD will charge no fees. At the end of six months, NBD will automatically renew if you wish at the then-applicable rate.

The annual interest rate will be set at the time of purchase and remain constant for the six-month period. Your funds at NBD will be insured up to $40,000. Should you decide to withdraw money before the end of the six-month period, federal regulation requires that a substantial interest penalty be assessed. For your added convenience, NBD has a Money Market Hotline—225-2700—that quotes current Treasury Bill interest rates 24 hours a day.

2 New 7¾%, eight-year Time Investment Certificates.

Also available now are these new NBD Time Investment Certificates. They'll be offered for denominations of $1,000 or more. The interest is computed from day of deposit and compounded quarterly. Federal regulations prohibit the payment of a time deposit before maturity unless three months of the interest is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate.

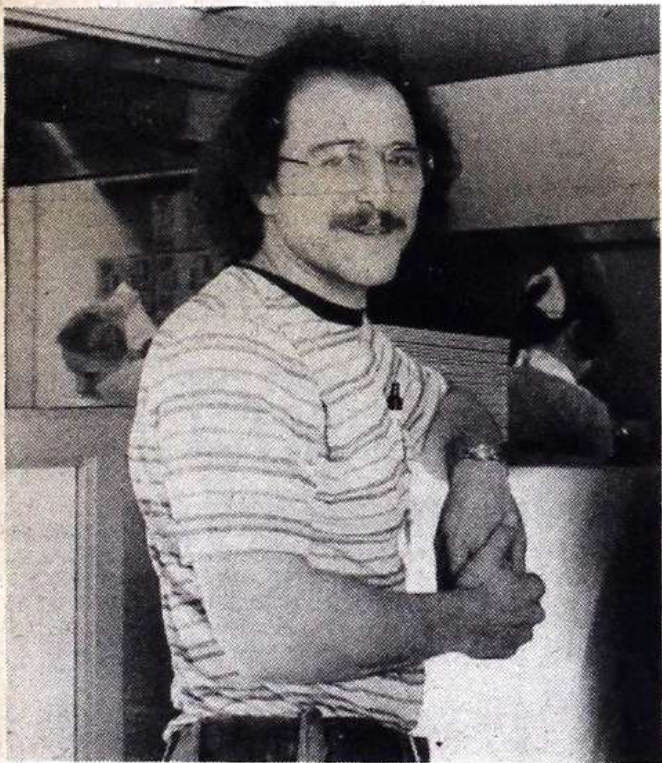

If you'd like to improve your earnings, stop at a nearby National Bank of Detroit office and ask about our new short-term Money Market Certificates...or our new eight-year Time Investment Certificates.

Canton Township resident Gary Mullen, 27, says that a White Castle hamburger sparks fond memories of his childhood. "Years ago I used to go to Detroit with my dad. He was a truck driver, and we'd always stop at a White Castle," said Mullen. He enjoys the burgers because of the quantity he can consume in one eating session. "I used to average six burgers at a time," he said, but last Thursday he only tried for four.

Glamourize your cooking with interesting garnishes

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

An excellent meal, cooked with a gourmet touch, can lose all appeal if the "chef" doesn't consider color as well as taste in her plans. Foods of one shade, for instance chicken, scalloped potatoes, cauliflower, rolls, have much less attraction than say, chicken, baked potato, broccoli, spiced apple ring. Can't you just see the difference in the two plates?

Garnishes play an important role in serving a meal. Think how much more attractive your molded salad will be when placed on a ruffle of lettuce or with a couple sprigs of mint, watercress or parsley. Whatever the finishing touch, make sure it's good to eat as well as to see. Each should add contrast of shape, color, crispness or flavor to the food it adorns.

FOR SOUPS: (just before serving) top with a sprinkling of minced parsley, chives, dill weed, watercress or other fresh herbs. Other flourishes might be a spoonful of salted whipped cream with a smattering of chives, a thin slice of lemon, croutons or a dollop of sour cream flecked with paprika.

FOR FISH: surround your platter with parsley sprigs, green pepper rings, lemon wedges, small soufflé cups filled with tartar sauce, thick slices of cucumber (unpeeled), plump orange slices, grapefruit sections, tomato slices dusted with dill weed or cracked black pepper, or tomato cups filled with tartar sauce.

FOR VEGETABLES: hard cooked eggs, sliced, wedged or sieved — the latter particularly nice on asparagus, spinach or broccoli. Sprinkle grated cheese on cauliflower, American fries, zucchini, cabbage or the aforementioned. Add little round onions, young green onions or scallions to the sides of casseroles; celery sliced

color crispness
or flavor to food it adorns"*

diagonally or in strips with bits of greens attached look well with green peas and radish slices on cauliflower are a pretty combo.

FOR MEAT PLATTERS: broiled peach and/or pear halves: spiced apple rings and stuffed prunes are all great with pork: slices of orange decorated with watercress or parsley make roast duck look even better: bunches of red green or purple grapes go well with chicken: molded cranberry cut-outs placed on orange slices really dress up a turkey or chicken dish: spiced peach halves and watercress might accompany baked ham while sautéed mushroom caps, French fried onion rings, fresh whole mushrooms, glazed onions and buttered carrot strips look (and taste) super with steak. Serve pot roast with tiny scooped-out tomatoes filled with horseradish or creamy horseradish sauce.

FOR SALADS: add at the last minute sprays of watercress, mint or parsley (depending on the salad ingredients); thin strips of pimiento or green pepper; green pepper rings atop; cream cheese balls, plain or rolled in nuts or chives; prunes, dates, figs or cherries stuffed with seasoned cream cheese or nuts.

also add interest to your dessert offerings.

Of course, along with all the fuss of garnishing your food, you'll not want to lack for a pretty table setting. So make sure your tablecloth, runners or placemats are in harmony with your China or pottery, silver or stainless, crystal or glassware.

Use pretty printed napkins to contrast with a plain cloth. Plan an interesting centerpiece even if you only have a pot of English ivy handy. Just glamourize it with a little figurine or two, perhaps a grouping of squat candles or a couple tall tapers off to one side.

However you do it, make it pretty to look at, easy to see over and something that blends with the other accessories on your table. Food is fun but the "added attractions" are even more so.

Ice cream-lemon treat

With the popularity of ice cream today, why not treat your family and friends to an old-fashioned ice cream social? The excellent flavor for this good tasting ice cream treat comes from the new lemonade flavor drink mix.

People of all ages will down this treat with old-fashioned gusto. (Photo courtesy Country Time lemonade flavor drink mix.)

For your recipe file

Have an ice cream social

In the 1800's ice cream socials were one of the events of the summer, but most often on a warm Sunday afternoon people would walk in the park, stop by that new kind of place called a soda fountain and enjoy a new kind of frothy beverage called an ice cream soda or a cold, mouth-watering lemonade.

Today, people of all ages still enjoy both lemonade and ice cream sodas, but more often they are made at home rather than at a soda fountain. Frothy ice cream sodas are still made as in the olden days, with carbonated water, ice cream and flavoring, but the lemonade is made from a new and exciting mix, Country Time lemonade flavor drink mix. It has a good old-fashioned lemonade taste — not too tart and not too sweet with 100 percent natural lemon flavor.

Treat your family and friends to an old-fashioned ice cream treat with a modern twist — Frothy Ice Creme. It's made with the delicious lemonade flavor drink mix, milk, ice cream, flaked coconut and club soda. Make it up and then stand back to watch the group down them with gusto!

Frothy Ice Creme

1 scoop lemonade flavor drink mix
1 cup vanilla ice cream, softened
1 cup milk
¼ cup flaked coconut
1 bottle (7 fl. oz.) club soda, chilled

Add drink mix to ice cream in a blender container, and blend thoroughly. Add milk and coconut and blend thoroughly. Just before serving, add club soda. Makes about 3½ cups or 3 servings.

About deadlines

As is the case with most human beings, we fail to see what we're not looking for or fail to see what we don't want to see.

In this particular instance we are referring to deadline notices which we attempt to print each week on the Suburban Living pages — boxed in notices that say "Suburban Living Deadline, Thursday, 2 p.m."

There's a reason for this deadline, be assured of that. We have to have time to prepare copy to be taken to the typesetters in our production office in Wayne.

With news coming across our desk and via the telephone throughout the day, there has to be time in which to write, re-write and edit copy as well as to compose heads and cutlines and plan layouts for the next issue.

We ask that you please try to remember that 2 p.m. Thursday is the cut-off time for accepting news which you expect to see in the following week's Suburban Living section. We will gladly take items after the deadline but, more likely than not, they will be a week late appearing in print.

Your cooperation will get your stories printed on time.

Homemaking: A role filled with platitudes?

"M is for the million things she gave me..." "A woman's work is never done." "Mom, apple pie and the American flag."

The homemaker's role often is reduced to such platitudes. Why not? Wives and mothers start out as "sugar and spice and everything nice..." So they continue through life as a series of clichés.

But who is the American homemaker — really? What are her goals and needs?

The role of today's homemaker was explored in a recent one-day seminar, "Homemaker: Career in Transition." The seminar, held in New York, brought together the various points of view to form a more complete picture of this changing profession.

Is it a viable career? Does it fulfill the women in it? What changes can be made to make it better? These are some of the questions experts in fields keyed to the homemaker's role examined.

"The homemaker has recently been defined as anyone who shares in the responsibility of making the home a nurturing, value setting, goal setting, self-fulfilling environment," noted Lenore Hershey, Ladies' Home Journal editor.

"Any discussion of the housewife's role always encompasses the topic of 'homemaker's rights,'" noted Susan Brown, a founder and officer of Housewives NOW in her seminar presentation.

"This is somewhat ironic, however, because homemakers do not really have rights. In fact, I am convinced that the status of homemakers will not — and perhaps even cannot — improve as long as we cling to the sexist theories that everything the homemaker does is instinctive. Only when women are accepted as full human beings with individual talents and unique capabilities will homemaking be recognized as work."

Ms. Brown continued to explain to the audience of more than 100 women's leaders how gaining recognition for homemaking as legitimate work is the key to economic security for homemakers.

"If I had a magic wand and could change homemaking to a 'real' job — social security benefits, credit reform — inclusion of homemakers in the Gross National Product and flexible child-care just might appear."

This lack of a "wage" for the housewife puts her in a dependent position to her husband.

"Except in the eight community property states, the wife has no share of the property acquired during marriage other than what the earning spouse gives her as a gift," explained Catherine East, a member of the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year and moderator of the panel on the homemaker as an economic force.

"At his death, however, she will have a right to a widely varying minimum share of the estate in almost all states, even if he wants to leave her nothing."

Why is the homemaker in this isolated position? Has she put four walls up around herself?

"In the early 19th century, people had the village, manor home and the extended families in cities for socialization," noted Helena Lopata, sociologist and author of "Occupation: Housewife". "But over the years, the family has become an isolated unit. Our affluent society has created this strange way of living."

"But this isolation isn't necessarily detrimental to the homemaker," noted Linda Fidell, a psychologist with California State University in her seminar presentation. "Although many professionals in social science and medicine have a very negative image of the housewife and her role, findings from a recently-completed study found happy housewives to be twice as numerous as unhappy ones."

"Every woman is expected to be a housewife and mother, no matter what her personality, her talent or her temperament. 'Yet if the domestic role is so 'inborn,' why does the culture have to program little girls so hard for it with dolls and dishes and mini-mops or remind women who are adults that ring-around-the-collar is evidence of failing femininity, good coffee is grounds for marriage and bad coffee will drive a husband to take a second cup from another woman's pot."

Is it worth it? Nine hours per day (as compiled in a Cornell University study) without pay? These are questions each woman must answer herself.

"There are a lot of women who probably wonder what price they will have to pay for exploring," said Erma Bombeck, syndicated columnist and keynote seminar speaker. "Will they gain a career...but lose a husband? Will they win a paycheck, but lose control at home? Will they feel too inadequate to run General Motors...but too educated to ever sort socks again? Or...will she commit herself to a new ensconced...and fail?"

This is the role which women have been programmed to accept, noted Letty Cottin Pogrebin, author and Ms. editor. "When marriage pronounces us man and wife, why don't we notice that he's being pronounced a person and she a role. I do not think this is changing despite everything we hear about the advances women are making."

"I see hundreds of women every year in my office who are about to be divorced, and it is astounding how little they know about their domestic economics. We do have enormous economic potential, but it is only potential."

"As Henrik Ibsen observed nearly a century ago, women, like certain forms of insects, are expected to serve society by bringing forth the next generation, then slinking away to die," Ms. Brown noted. "Either we live with this brutal statement or we can work to change it."

Stuffed zucchini

In trying to come up with different ways to use that abundant crop, our zucchini, I recalled the night our neighbor invited us over to try a new recipe last year. Telling us she was using us as "guinea pigs", Maxine said she was experimenting with a new zucchini dish and would we like to be in on the sampling.

It was so good that it just has to be included as this week's zucchini offering. BAKED STUFFED ZUCCHINI

2 fairly large zucchini
1 box Stove Top Stuffing Mix
1/2 green pepper, finely chopped
Swiss, Munster or Monterey Jack cheese

Wash zucchini, towel dry but do not peel. Cut in half lengthwise, cut in half again crosswise and boil in lightly salted water until it begins to get tender. DO NOT OVERCOOK. Scoop out pulp and set aside. Make Stove Top Stuffing according to directions on package, adding squash pulp and chopped green pepper (raw or lightly sauteed in a little oil or butter.) Fill scooped-out quarters with stuffing mix and top each quarter with a piece of cheese which just covers stuffing. This may be wrapped loosely in aluminum foil or placed in a tightly covered casserole. Bake for 35 minutes in a 350 degree oven. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese atop if so desired.

Thanks to a dear, sweet friend, Marge Roberts of Lake Pointe Pass, we gals have a new raw vegetable dip to try these hot, summer days when only something cool, crisp and slenderizing will hit the spot. Granted the dip is NOT of a lo-cal nature (the dippers ARE) but good cooks can certainly take care of that by substituting dietary ingredients if they so prefer.

This, Marge says, is great with celery, cucumber, carrot and zucchini sticks; green pepper strips, cherry tomatoes, cauliflower and broccoli clusters, small fresh mushrooms, scallions — you name it!

VEGETABLE DIP

- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 pkg. Good Season Italian Dressing Mix
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- dash cayenne
- 4 teaspoons vinegar (Marge prefers wine vinegar)
- 6 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 teaspoon horseradish mustard

Whip until creamy and chill before serving. For 10 to 14 guests.

— From Marge Roberts

CHEERS — for Van Buren Township and its decision to crack down on those drivers whose cars, trucks and vans come to rest daily in no parking zones — those same in different clowns who've turned a once-pretty "island" between Quirk and Belleville Roads into the local pig sty. Now to see those vehicles actually being towed out of there.

JEERS — to those out-of-the-area fishermen who still INSIST on parking where signs clearly state NO; those so-called nature lovers who thumb their noses at our local authorities!

Not many of you knew that we once had Beard's Book and Gift Shop at the corner of Main and Fourth (where Town and Country is located) or that smack next to it was another of the city's ironmongers, Belleville Hardware, or that we had a big, old weathered, grey bakery at the corner of Main and Fifth (now partly occupied by Hamilton's). I'm remembering it as the "child across the street" so naturally, it was "big" — those steps leading up to it seemed a mountain at the time and I swear I can even recall the aroma that wafted from that wonderful old place each day.

SUMMER SANDWICH FAVORITE: Black bread or Russian rye spread with cream cheese, topped with thinly-sliced cucumbers then sliced corn beef loaf; the final piece of bread lathered with butter. You can improvise, of course, and add sweet Bermuda onion or fresh tomato or even lettuce — it's your treat from here on in.

Some people (particularly BG) think I'm nuts, BUT — I've a thing about the construction of my sandwiches — butter next to the meat, mayo next to the lettuce or tomatoes, and if the ingredients call for mustard or relish (no catsup, thanks) they go ON the meat.

Idiosyncrasy? Or family trait? I've learned from my sisters-in-law that "it" runs in the family. Their husbands like a certain pattern followed for building a sandwich, too.

I swear Maurice (of 9-Lives fame) got more ink, more air time and more TV coverage on his demise than most HUMAN celebrities or veeeps.

It appears that our area's new (and first) disco, "Paddles", has debuted in overwhelmingly successful fashion and is playing to SRO (standing room only) crowds — the overflow waiting on line to be seated.

Having heard rave reviews from our own two "fans" we decided to check out the luncheon menu after golf last week and see if the food was on a par with the purportedly posh surroundings.

Well, the reports were right — the place HAS got class with its super tiered seating arrangement, cozy round tables and ultra-comfortable chairs, clean bright colors and the ultimate — a glassed-in racquetball court on which to dance. We hear disco buffs have given the current 6-piece band a 4-point rating — (the drinks coming somewhat lower on the scale.)

Yes, Paddles is ALMOST first rate; our enthusiasm plunging, tho, when (in those gorgeous trappings) our waitress gave us PLASTIC cutlery and our salads on plasticized plates! The paradox was that our side dressings came in tall, delicate liquor glasses — the Ritz nest to the pits. We couldn't help but wonder how we'd have eaten the openface steak sandwich with those utensils.

And, if perchance, this is just a temporary measure (our waitress didn't seem to know-or care) — my humblest apologies to Paddles.

SPELLING LESSON: Or — little hints the teacher gave us to remember certain words. If you can tell yourself that something is either all right or all wrong, you won't end up with "alright". Remind yourself there's a "rat" in separate and you won't have to decide between "a" and "e". We all know, of course, that we had a "pal" in principal and that if we remember that stationery and envelopes go together, then we'll use the RIGHT stationery (not stationary) when we refer to writing paper. An old classmate of mine (way back in high school) had a cute way of spelling "bookkeeping" which will keep you on the right track, too. Just say B, double O, double K, double E, — PING!

THE BOTTOM LINE: If you are ever asked what our nation stands for, you might answer with two words — "Too much!"

Planning on home canning? Read this check list first!

So you've planted a garden and now you have fresh vegetables coming out of your ears. You've given the home grown delights to friends and neighbors, but there's still more on the vine than you can eat.

What should you do? Do what thousands of families are doing to beat the increasing cost of canned foods in supermarkets. That's home canning.

And before you jump into it feet first, read up on home canning to find out what you need. Canning has advanced a great deal since the pioneer days. So here's a handy checklist, compiled by home economists, that should cover your home canning needs.

(1) SPOONS for stirring, spooning, packing and lifting. Use wooden spoons for stirring and packing; slotted spoons for lifting. Measuring spoons are a must.

(2) KNIVES should include a good paring knife, a sharp chopping knife and a vegetable peeler.

(3) FOOD BRUSHES with stiff bristles are needed for carefully washing produce.

(4) SAUCEPANS are needed for jams and jellies, heating lids, etc.

(5) MEASURING CUPS, both dry (metal) and liquid (glass) should be on hand.

(6) JELLY BAGS AND JELMETER for jelly making. The bags of thin fabric help strain juice from softened fruit and pulp, while the jelmeter, a graduated glass tube with an opening at each end, measures the jelling power of the juice.

(7) COLANDER OR STRAINER holds and drains just washed produce.

(8) SCALES, with capacity up to 25 lbs. (11 kg), are needed for following recipes where ingredients are given by weight.

(9) TIMER for measuring processing times accurately by the minute.

(10) PRESSURE CANNERS the right size for your family with either dial gauges or weighted, to process low acid foods like most vegetables.

(11) BOILING WATER BATH CANNERS to process acid foods, like most fruits. Height is important because the jars, when seated on the canner's rack, must be covered by a 1/2 inch of water with an extra 1/2 inch of boiling space above that.

(12) CROCKS, clean and free of cracks and chips, are needed for pickling foods.

(13) JAR LIFTER with soft plastic coating and wooden handles keep both hands and jars safe when removing from canners.

(14) JAR FUNNEL AND BUBBLE FREER, are both handy items.

The canning funnel keeps food off sealing surfaces and accurately measures head space. The bubble freer, a long, smooth plastic implement (or a similar non-metallic utensil) is needed to run down the sides of filled jars to remove air bubbles without damaging the jar as metal objects do.

(15) LIDS AND JARS are an essential in canning. Standard home canning jars should be bought according to the size appropriate to family needs. Buy lids from a reliable manufacturer, be sure to keep the packaging and follow instructions carefully.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELAINE JOSEPH
Area Director, The Diet Workshop

What happens when the oooohs and ahhs cease..... And the applause stops, and everyone becomes accustomed to the new, thin you? Diet gratifies with its dramatic results. Week by week, less and less materializes in the mirror and on the scale. Friends admire, family congratulates, and acquaintances marvel. The dieter occupies center stage front, smack in the middle of the spotlight.

Comes the day when the scale announces that goal is at hand. What then? For a while old friends disbelieve when they bump into the dieter. Chance meetings at street corners and bus stops become times for "I can't believe my eyes." Alas! Everyone has a limit on old friends, and before the fledgling thinnie would like, the admiration takes a back seat to the latest war scare, political upheaval, or plane crash.

Could be that one of the reasons so many of us find maintenance difficult is that the romance is gone. The process seems to cease once goal has been reached. Ahead looms only a thin future without the continued notice. The reducer who filled a dieting life with nothing but diet and no other end but becoming slim, slowly slides back into the old ways. If dieting is the sole accomplishment, then obviously the way to obtain attention is to become fat so that the diet may begin again.

Now is the time, while you are on the way down to expand your interests beyond the next diet meal. Think about a job. You don't want a job? Consider some volunteer work. Don't like being tied down to a schedule? Take up a new hobby, one that you can tuck into any available crevasse. Just be sure that something is waiting to fill the diet void for you once you have reached goal.

I'm outright telling you that you must exercise your common sense. Find out the differences in calories among your favorite foods. Save the high-calorie ones for special occasions and deserved treats. Make the low calorie ones your staples. You'll lose faster and more steadily if you do.

And that, dear friends, is what dieting is all about. Steady, consistent losses—the reward of sound, nutritionally balanced eating.

Prepare plants for your vacation

Nobody wants to come home from vacation to a house full of dying houseplants, a wild, unkempt lawn and a garden overrun with weeds and loaded with rotten produce. Avoid it all with a little prevacation planning and plant care.

If you'll be gone for two or three weeks or longer, arrange for someone to mow the lawn. A shaggy lawn is a tip-off that no one is home. Regular mowing also helps keep grass strong and healthy.

It's a good idea to invite some friends to harvest garden crops as they ripen. A neglected garden is another sign that no one is home.

It would be asking a lot of even good friends to expect them to weed the garden as well as harvest it. To keep the weeds from taking over, mulch around garden crops and between rows. Watering thoroughly before you mulch will help garden plants withstand dry weather that may occur while you're gone.

Flower beds will look tidy and well tended if you remove the faded flowers and seed heads from perennials and annuals before you leave. Many flowering annuals will stop blooming and grow less vigorously if they're allowed to go to seed.

Houseplants that have come outdoors for the summer will survive your absence better if they're sunk into the garden soil. This will prevent them from drying out quickly in warm summer breezes or tipping over in the wind.

It's not such a good idea to take houseplants indoors if you're not going to be home to watch for insect infestations. Your two or three week vacation away from home could give a few imported insects time to turn into a fullscale invasion. A fine welcome home that would be!

Houseplants left in the home should be thoroughly watered and placed in the bathtub or in some other humid, low-light area. The combination of high humidity and low light will conserve soil moisture and slow plant growth so plants are not so likely to need water again soon.

You can also group plants together in a low-light area, water thoroughly and cover with a clear plastic sheet to hold in moisture. Because the plastic will also hold in heat, be sure the plants are placed where the sun will not shine directly on them.

Leslie Browne, a young dancer in the movie, "The Turning Point," will perform with the Ballet Repertory Company on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening, beginning at 8:30 p.m. Featured soloists will be Leslie Browne and Patrick Bissell of the American Ballet Theatre. Miss Browne was nominated early this year for an Academy Award for her portrayal of a young dancer in the movie, "The Turning Point." The Pavilion is sold out for all three performances, however, lawn tickets are available at $4 each. In addition, the Ballet Repertory Company will appear at a Daytime Open Rehearsal, scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday and at a Young People's Concert, entitled Ballet and Beauty on Saturday morning. At the open rehearsal, company director and choreographer, Richard Englund, will introduce the dancers who will then demonstrate and perform excerpts from their repertory with commentary, music and some costumes. Tickets are $3.50 each. The Meadow Brook gates will open at 12 noon so that visitors may enjoy their own picnic lunch or purchase a light salad luncheon at Trumbull Terrace. The Ballet and Beauty program, specifically designed to introduce youngsters to the art of dance, is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. and will last approximately one hour. The company will discuss and demonstrate the importance of each element of a total performance including the dances, music, costumes and story. Tickets for this Young People's Concert are $3.50 each. Snack food will be available at the Concession Tent during the performance. The week ends on Sunday, with the Summer festival fun

The Greenfield Village Players have resurrected Mark Twain, Stephen Foster, Ben Franklin and many other colorful characters during the Old Time Summer Festival. The event runs daily through Sept. 4 at the village. There is the wit and wisdom of a modern-day Ben Franklin, the delightful shrieking arguments of the Punch and Judy Show, and the comedy of Doc Bryson and his Medicine Show. These attractions are joined by other performances with an old-fashioned flavor. Minstrels stroll through the Village to the music of early American folk tunes. Fair schedule set

The Michigan State Fair has released the full schedule of special days for the 1978 fair, and it includes some traditions and some new ideas.

Among the traditions are Senior Citizens Day and Veterans Day, both long-standing events at the State Fair. New ideas include the Roaring 20's Day and a greatly expanded program for Service Club Day.

According to Harold Arnoldi, director of special events for the Michigan State Fair, the full schedule for the 1978 fair will be:

- Aug. 24, grand opening parade;
- Aug. 25, opening day;
- Aug. 26, clowns day;
- Aug. 27, roaring '20s day;
- Aug. 28, senior citizens day;
- Aug. 29, agriculture day;
- Aug. 30, queens day;
- Aug. 31, governor's day;
- Sept. 1, service club day;
- Sept. 2, veterans day;
- Sept. 3, international day; and
- Sept. 4, labor day.

Most days include free entertainment, contests and prizes according to Arnoldi. Information on participating in any of the special events may be obtained by contacting the Department of Special Events, Michigan State Fair, Detroit 48203, or by calling 368-1000.

The Michigan State Fair is 129 years old this year, which makes it the oldest state fair in the nation.

Fair officials are continuing a policy started two years ago of admitting under 12 free. Admission for others will again be $3.

Ballet troupe features Ms. Browne

The Ballet Repertory Company will perform on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening, beginning at 8:30 p.m. Featured soloists will be Leslie Browne and Patrick Bissell of the American Ballet Theatre. Miss Browne was nominated early this year for an Academy Award for her portrayal of a young dancer in the movie, "The Turning Point." The Pavilion is sold out for all three performances, however, lawn tickets are available at $4 each. In addition, the Ballet Repertory Company will appear at a Daytime Open Rehearsal, scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday and at a Young People's Concert, entitled Ballet and Beauty on Saturday morning. At the open rehearsal, company director and choreographer, Richard Englund, will introduce the dancers who will then demonstrate and perform excerpts from their repertory with commentary, music and some costumes. Tickets are $3.50 each. The Meadow Brook gates will open at 12 noon so that visitors may enjoy their own picnic lunch or purchase a light salad luncheon at Trumbull Terrace. The Ballet and Beauty program, specifically designed to introduce youngsters to the art of dance, is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. and will last approximately one hour. The company will discuss and demonstrate the importance of each element of a total performance including the dances, music, costumes and story. Tickets for this Young People's Concert are $3.50 each. Snack food will be available at the Concession Tent during the performance. The week ends on Sunday, with the popular piano team of Ferrante and Teicher. Their concert offers "something for everyone" — a variety of familiar tunes including their hits, "Exodus" and "The Theme from the Apartment" plus occasional novelty numbers and humor throughout. Pavilion seats are sold-out, but lawn tickets are still available at $3.50 each.

Chivalry revived at festival

Chivalry is not dead. The 1,000-year tradition is alive and well, and living at the Ann Arbor Medieval Festival.

The Medieval Festival is a lively celebration that brings the Middle Ages back to life in music, theatre, dance, and crafts. For example, craftspeople display their wares, musicians play early instruments (krumphorns, sackbuts and recorders to name a few), dancers perform a stately court dance and an energetic Morris dance.

Among the other attractions are mimes, beggars, wenches, courtly ladies, jugglers, smiths, fools, wandering minstrels bewailing their loves, buffoons missing the point and an itinerant monk who reproves the crowd for indulging in the sinful pleasures of the festival.

The Medieval Festival takes place at the University of Michigan (Ann Arbor) School of Music grounds Aug. 5 and 6 from 10 a.m. to dusk. The event is free.

The Ann Arbor Medieval Festival is a non-profit organization that receives its support from both local businesses and the university.

The cooperative arrangement between the community and the university parallels the pageant tradition of 500 years ago. The whole town was involved in these pageants: The Church lent the vestments and the performing space, and the Guildsmen acted in the mystery plays (dramas depicting Biblical stories).

Four plays will be performed at the Medieval Festival. One is a mystery play, "The Second Shepherd's Play". The others are "Sganarelle, or the Imaginary Cuckold", a French farce; "Romiet and Julio, or How Many Anachronisms Can You Find?", a play in the Medieval style by local playwright Ed Grinnen; and "Fool Surgery", by Hans Sachs, the Meistersinger of Nuremberg. This will be the first performance of "Fool Surgery" in English, in a new translation by Martin Walsh and Margarete Orlik-Walsh.

the other on the years 1920-1940, alternately are featured. Both include dancing, songs and comic sketches. The Players also portray composer Stephen Foster and author Mark Twain, reconstructing their characters through stories inspired by their works. In an 1880s comedy skit, "The Trial," they tell the story of a young woman who goes to court to get a job using a new-fangled invention — the typewriter. There is no charge for Old Time Summer Festival beyond the regular admission of $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children 6 through 12. Children under 6 are admitted free.

Consumers Comment

Safeguards control door-to-door sales practices

BY LINDA JOY
Executive Director
Michigan Consumers Council

Many consumers fall victim each summer to the unscrupulous salesperson who knocks on the door offering fantastic prices on products ranging from encyclopedias to smoke detectors. While some door-to-door salespersons may want to satisfy their customers, others pressure consumers into buying a product; then they pocket the down payment and skip town.

To help protect consumers from these practices, state and federal laws give consumers the right to change their minds within three days of signing a door-to-door sales contract or a deal negotiated over the telephone. This means, if you want to break a contract signed in your home for a product costing more than $25, simply write the company within three days of the sale saying you are cancelling the contract. The company must refund all of the money paid within ten days and make arrangements to either ship the product back or pick it up within 20 days.

Like any other contract, be sure

VA aids
veterans to adjust

The war in Vietnam has been over for three years and unless the serviceman chose to make that his career, most veterans of that period have returned to civilian life.

However, some veterans from that war are having adjustment problems in shaping their futures, said Frank Kilcullen, director of the VA regional office in Detroit.

Veterans of that era are more fortunate than their counterparts from other wars because new laws have set up a special counseling service under the Veterans Administration for their benefit.

Kilcullen said the service provides testing and evaluation of an individual veteran concerning his capabilities and desires in planning his future. The service aids the veteran in selecting a profession or job that will help him lead a rewarding life.

Counseling on college, undergraduate or technological studies is part of the program. Changes in courses after an initial change require counseling before VA approval is given for specific courses.

Counseling and information is available at the VA regional office in Detroit. Information may be obtained from veteran service organization representatives.

everything is clearly understood and filled out before you sign it. Look for a notice on the contract which explains the three-day cancellation procedure; this is required by law. The contract also should give the name, address and telephone number of the company in case you decide to cancel the sale.

Get all verbal promises made by the salesperson included in the contract and, of course, don't sign one which has any blank spaces. Also check the number of carbons of the contract. If they are not identical, drop the sale immediately and destroy what you've already signed for your own protection.

Consumers often fall prey to sales pitches from a door-to-door salesperson which they probably would never accept in a store. One of these is the "sympathy approach." Door-to-door salespersons may play on the emotions to persuade someone to purchase their goods by saying such things as they are working their way through school or they are veterans trying to fit back into society. Remember, these may be professional tactics used to manipulate people into buying their merchandise. Evaluate the product on its own merits; don't fall for the emotional appeal.

Some door-to-door salespersons will claim to represent a charitable organization as part of their sales pitch. If you hear this approach, check with the state's attorney general's office to see if the charity is registered in Michigan. The address is Consumer Protection and Charitable Trusts Division, 525 W. Ottawa, Seventh Floor, Law Building, Lansing, MI 48913; or call (517) 373-1140.

Another common tactic used by unscrupulous door-to-door salespersons is offering a discount on a product, if you get some friends or relatives to buy the same item. This scheme is illegal under Michigan's Consumer Protection Act and should be reported to the local prosecuting attorney or the State Attorney General's office.

Some salespersons claim they are "conducting a survey" or "offering a free gift." Ask for the credentials of any survey-taker and remind the person offering the free gift that, under the Consumer Protection Act, a free gift must really be free without any hidden obligations.

For more information on door-to-door sales or a free copy of the Council's brochure on the Consumer Protection Act, write the Michigan Consumers Council, 106 W. Allegan, 414 Hollister Building, Lansing, MI 48933.

Tom Piscopink is master of 5 cities

Champ fires record 8 under par 136

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

It was sticky-humid, hot and it even rained but nature or a field of 119 other ambitious golfers couldn't stop 30-year-old Tom Piscopink from defending his City Championship Golf title.

Piscopink played while the rest lamented the 96 humid degrees at Fellows' Creek and turned in a record-shattering 8 under par 136 to repeat for the second time as the tournament medalist.

The 12th hour entry unboastfully fired a 3 under par 69 on Saturday during a sauna-baked morning, then came back to a sizzling 67 to establish a record on the 6,210 yard Canton Township golf course.

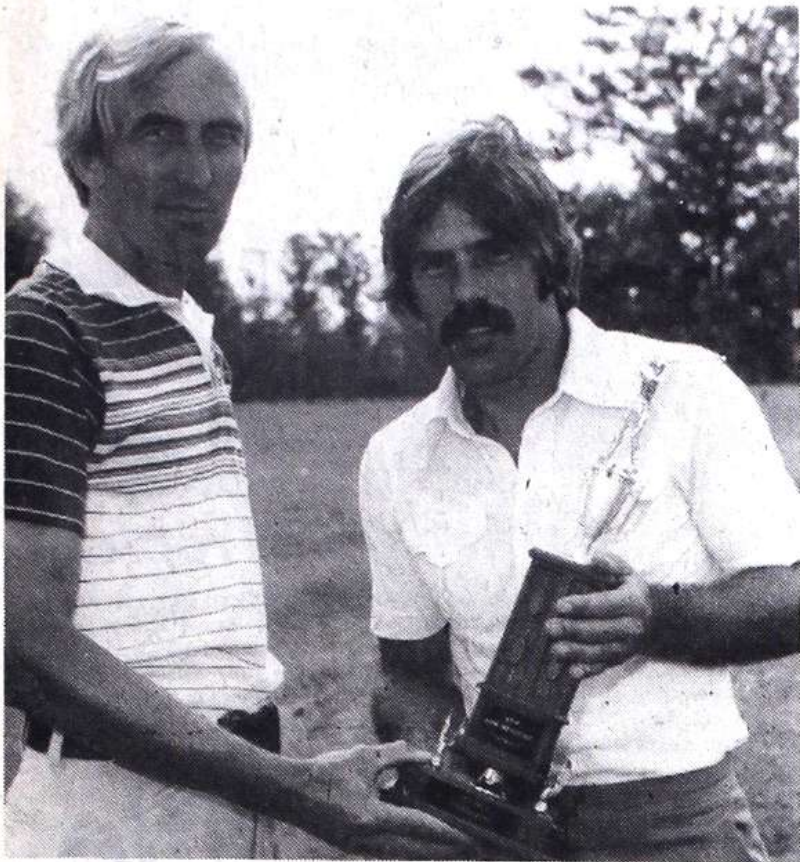

While Garden City's Roger Sutherland, making his debut in the 5-cities tournament, stayed within range after 18 holes with a 71 and Inkster's Angelo Garfole who turned

A 12th-hour entry, defending champ Tom Piscopink, successfully defended his City Championship Golf Tournament title by scoring a sizzling record 8-under-par 136 for 36 holes at Fellows Creek over the weekend. Piscopink (at right) receives congratulations and the medalist trophy from Bill Hawley, tournament manager. Piscopink, who didn't take up the sport until after high school, says he would like to join the pro tour, "but financing such a venture at present is difficult."

in a first round score of 72 within close range, all challengers faded during the second round.

"This is the best I have ever played," said Piscopink who gave himself an early birthday present by winning his third championship in eight years. He'll be 31 today (July 27). "Everything was going right — I was knocking them so close to the holes. It was fantastic."

Sutherland, who was in the foursome with Piscopink the second day, commented that "Tom's one of the best players I've ever played golf with. I never saw a guy hit the ball with the acceleration he does."

Canton's Rick Francis had just too much ground to make up and finished runner-up, but a hefty eight strokes back. However, Francis' 144 stood up to earn for him the Canton Township title. He dethroned Paul Deedler who had an assortment of problems.

The 5-foot-7, 160-pound Piscopink, who shot a sizzling 138 to win it a year ago, picked up where he left off by carding six birdies each day. Three bogeys Saturday left him with a 69, while a lone bogey Sunday gave him 67 for the winning total.

On Saturday Piscopink birdied holes one, two and three on the front side before going one under on 13, 16 and 17. But bogeys on 12, 14, and 18 canceled out half of his six birds.

On carding his first nine 33 during the first round and during extreme heat and humidity, the champ scored three on the 385-yard first hole, three on the 405-yard second, and a four on the par-five 475 third hole.

Did the humidity get to him? "Toward the end of the first round, yes," replied Piscopink, "however, we were all in the same shoes. I know the humidity took its toll."

The victory also gave Piscopink his third consecutive Wayne title and he was awarded the Lenny Anderson Memorial Trophy for the third year in a row.

Meanwhile, Murray Brooks captured medalist honors for Westland as he put together rounds of 73 and 75 for a 148 total, two strokes better than Bob Weibel, and Garfole replaced Lacy Hill as the No.1 golfer in Inkster. Hill, the defending champ, had the misfortune of playing right after a vacation which didn't include golfing.

Garfole beat out a Dearborn Heights' veteran, Richard Dicesore who works in Inkster. Dicesore carded a 154 as compared to the new champ's 146. Jimmy Jackson was two-strokes back at 156, beating Bruce Markwardt in a playoff.

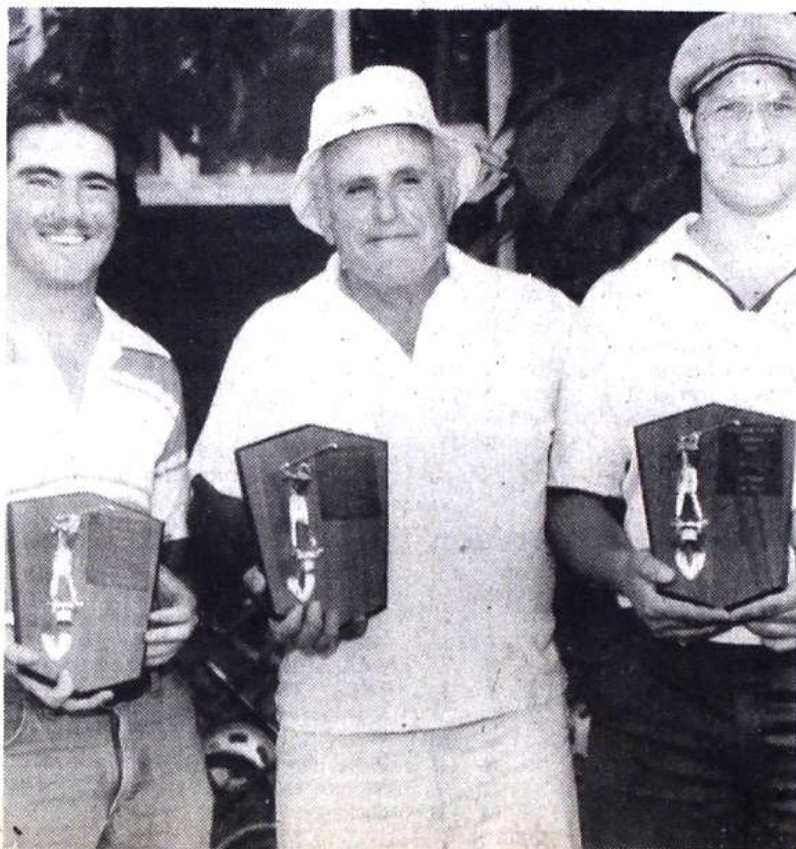

Deedler also was faced in a "catch-up" situation in Canton. After shooting a 77 the first day, the defending champ needed to make up four strokes to catch Francis who turned in a one-under par 71 on Sunday to seal his victory. T.J. Rivard finished with a couple of 76 rounds for 152, then lost to Deedler in a "sudden death" playoff.

Terry Bielecki and Sutherland were locked in a duel for the Garden City title and Sutherland ran into problems the second day after posting an impressive 71 the first day. Bielecki, who is a former Garden City East golfer, came back on Sunday to an enviable 70, while Sutherland's fortunes dipped to a 76 and he was left second best with a 147.

The tournament is sponsored by the department of parks and recreation departments of Westland, Inkster, Wayne, Canton and Garden City along with The Associated Newspapers.

The top five finishers in the championship flight qualify for the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association's state tournament which will be hosted by Walled Lake on September 23.

The top three finishers of each of the flights were awarded trophies.

Sweet victory

It wasn't the best of days for golfing, with the humidity a big as a problem as the course, but Kevin Pollock (from left), Jasper Cacioppo and Michael Bailey didn't seem to mind as they captured the top three spots and trophies in Wayne's First Flight. Pollock shot a 156, shaving 10 strokes off his first-day round, to finish first in flight with a 36-hole total of 156. Meanwhile, Cacioppo and Bailey had to battle it out in a "sudden death" playoff when each turned in 167s. Cacioppo eventually won the playoff after playing four extra holes. The two-day weekend tournament lured more than 100 amateur men golfers to Fellows Creek. The tournament decided the city championships for Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Canton and Garden City and the top five finishers in the championship flight will advance to the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association's state finals which will be staged on Aug. 23 in Walled Lake.

Romulus sets physical examination dates

All boys and girls who will be competing in athletics at Romulus High School this year are urged to complete their physical examinations.

The examinations will be conducted at the high school on Tuesday and Wednesday, August 8-9 from 3 p.m. according to athletic director, Bill Hardy.

Hardy reminded athletes that, according to the Michigan School Athletic Association rules, no athlete may compete in competitive sports without a physical.

The examination will cost $3 and both junior and senior high athletes, boys and girls, should report. If there are any questions, contact Hardy at the high school (941-2170).

New city champions

Paul Deedler (above, at right) the defending Canton champ, had his share of problems the first day of the City Championship Golf Tournament and spotted the eventual winner, Rick Francis (center) four strokes which Francis didn't relinquish. Francis went on to dethrone Deedler and claim his first Canton golf title. The new champ posted a two-day, 36-hole total of 144, while Deedler found himself in a two-way tie for second with T. J. Rivard and the defending champ managed to win a "sudden death" playoff. Meanwhile, newcomers to the tournament also walked off with plaques as George Ostyn, Darrell Newsome and Harold Fowler swept the first three places in Westland's first flight. Fowler's (at right) and Ostyn handshake after trophy presentations.

The Sports Meridian

'Stop the presses'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

The presses were humming and the joggers were hustling to pack up their bundles. One of the ink-covered young men wearing protective ear muffs against the deafening noise nodded at me and grabbed one of the freshly-printed newspapers off the press and handed it to me.

I backed out of the press room, flipped over to the sports section (what else) and looked over the lead story quickly. I was pleased. No typos. Looks good. And headed back to my desk.

It was about 3 p.m., two hours before the registration deadline for the City Championship golf tournament. I figured the morning mail had brought with it the final entries, so I decided early that day (last Tuesday) to get my lead story about the golf tournament out of the way.

There was no entry blank then from Tom Piscopink, the defending champ of the tournament. And I had noted in my story that the tournament title was up for grabs.

When I got back to my desk, there sitting, waiting to make my day a double aspirin on-the-rocks day was none other than Tom Piscopink.

"But I have until 5 p.m. to enter," said Piscopink, "and it's only 3 now."

With the big smile that can melt any animosity, Piscopink continued: "Now, if you don't want me to play, it's o.k. I understand."

"But, Tom," I pleaded, "you don't understand. The story about you not playing in our tournament is on the presses right now. I've already written that you're going to by pass this one to get ready for the Grand Rapids Publix Match Play. You can't do this to me."

"Can't you stop the presses? Like they say you guys do?" he quipped.

I took Piscopink by the hand and led him into the press room. "Please, Tom, tell those guys to 'stop the presses.'"

The rest is history. I've always had a sophisticated philosophy about this tournament that the defending champ should have the opportunity to defend his title, so Piscopink got in.

And he proceeded to tear up the course. He shot a record 136 for the 36-hole tournament and the encore victory enabled the father of two to become the winningest golfer of this tournament.

Like all those who take the game seriously, Tom would like to turn pro, and like most "finances" are the key to turning that dream into reality.

"It would take me, I figure, about six months of constant playing and, of course, I'm going to need some financial backing so that my wife, Toni, and my kids, Tammy and Tracie, don't starve."

Turning pro may be the only way for us to stop Piscopink from winning this annual tournament.

Speaking of the tournament, it has become one of the best of its kind — and, if that sounds like we're patting ourselves on our backs — it isn't. The reason why this tournament has been an outstanding one is because of the golfers, the men and women of the local parks and recreation departments, namely, Ron Wolkowicz (Inkster), Patti Lynn (Westland), Keith Johnson (Wayne), Mike Gouin (Wayne), and guys like Bill Hawley and Bill Whitworth who do most of the paper work involved.

There is no doubt in my mind that these people are the people who deserve the applause for making this tournament something more than just an annual golf outing.

And, there were some golfers who picked up the wrong plaques. Please take note, and if you have received the wrong plaque, return it to our offices and we'll exchange it. We have also ordered six more plaques for the additional two flights and winners may pick them up in approximately 10 days.

Bob King, who has played in more of these tournaments than anyone else, wonders why we're discriminating against "senior citizens."

King, a handsome 72-year-old, says that those over 55 should have a separate flight or a separate tournament to compete in.

That may be true, but if you glance over at King's score — he shot 79 for the first 18, then turned around and carded an 82 for the second for a 161 — and you won't find many "senior citizens" shooting that kind of golf.

But, I do have to agree — we're going to have to do something, aside from handicapping this thing, to make sure the seniors get more of a break.

And, as it has been the tradition for the past 15 years, this is the time of the year when I leave the sports desk for a couple of weeks of rest.

Jim Bradley will take over in our absence and we'll be back August 15th to get ready for our annual football special.

While Terry Bielecki (at left) finished with a fury and overcame a four-stroke deficit to catch Roger Sutherland who led the first round in Garden City with a 71, the first round leader embraced a 76 the second day and lost the Garden City crown to his young challenger. Bielecki, a former Garden City East golf standout, finished with a 145, two strokes better than Sutherland to claim his first title. Sutherland was runner-up while John Kulazanka, a former East High baseball-wrestling coach, carded a 153, good for third place.

A monopoly on Len Anderson Trophy

Tom Piscopink apparently has created a sort of monopoly on the Lenny Anderson Memorial Trophy as he accepts it for the third consecutive year after winning the City Championship Golf Championship. Bill Anderson, (at right), the slain Wayne Police Officer's brother, presents the trophy to Piscopink who has dominated the Wayne phase of the competitions for the past three years.

the tournament for the past two. Patrolman Anderson, a former Westland John Glenn all-around athlete, was cut down by a deranged citizen after answering a domestic quarrel complaint. He was the first officer to die in the line of duty in Wayne and the trophy is presented by the Wayne Police Officers' Association in memory of their slain companion.

Westland wins district title

Babe Ruth 13-year-olds advance to state tourney

Westland will get a shot at the state 13-year-old Babe Ruth championship.

But Lincoln Park made sure that the Westland Youth Athletic Association's AAA 15-year-old team wouldn't make the trip to the state tournament as the visitors rallied for a 9-7 victory over the host last week.

The Parkers swept three games, including a crucial finale that saw them trailing by as much as five runs. They scored four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to overtake and jolt the Westlanders.

The 13-year-old tournament was an all Westland affair as the local AAA beating its colleagues in the finals. The champs started the tournament with a 16-3 triumph over West 7 Nationals as Bill Ollis drilled three hits and pitcher Chris Usery had an easy time chalking up the decision.

In their second encounter, the Westlanders defeated the Westland AA squad 4-0. Keith Blasco checked the AA battery and led his team to the finals.

In the final game, Usery again pitched the Westland AAA to a victory and scored the first run on a squeeze bunt by Steve Hatcher who also tallied latter along with Mike White on a hard-hit double by Bill Ollis.

The Westlanders will head for the state championships to be staged in Croswell, Michigan. The championship will be decided beginning July 28.

16 teams gather for annual Anderson softball tourney

Fifteen teams, including the runner-up and third place finishers, will be on hand to challenge Burghuff Bar, the defending champ, for the Lenny Anderson Memorial Softball Tournament championship.

Burghuff, which presently shares the Class A lead in Wayne, will face a wide assortment of teams from the area when the second annual tournament is staged on Aug. 11 through Aug. 13.

"Since Burghuff is back," said Larry Quartuccio, we have to single them out as the favorite for this tournament. But, there are a lot of other good, solid teams this year and the competition should be great."

Runner-up a year ago, VFW Post Harris Kehr, will try to move up a notch to oust the champ and also eyeing the top spot of Perry-Mead of Garden City, a team that finished third a year ago.

The list of entries also includes: Jack's Lounge of Romulus, Century 21 of Westland, Marsh Tire of Livonia, Telegraph Bar of Dearborn, Dietrick Buick-Garden City Sports of Wayne, Jack's Sports of Romulus, Broncos of Wayne, Unistrut of Wayne, Hof-brau of Wayne, Wayne County's Sheriff's Department, Joe Thomas of Westland and Don Massey Cadillac.

There will be sponsored trophies for the top three teams and a MVP trophy as well as individual trophies to the team that eventually wins the title. A MVP jacket is being donated by Jack's Sporting Goods.

Fans will be able to take in all of the action free of charge.

Lenny Anderson was the first Wayne police officer to die in the line of duty.

Dolphins excel at swim relays

A total of 43 different swimmers went to the winners' stand last week as the Wayne Recreation Dolphin Swim Club captured 19 of 22 relay events and its second straight Winter-Summer Conference meet.

The Dolphins gained 244 points to easily outdistance second place Crestwood, which has 136 points in a breaststroke meet hosted by Cherry Hill.

The other three Wayne relay teams finished second. The conference is composed of five clubs with swimmers from seven to 18 years old. All events in four specialty-stroke meets are relays before the season finale—an individual meet.

In the breaststroke meet, 10 Dolphins gained three first place ribbons each. Keith Head accomplished the feat in the 9 and 10 year group; Sarah O'Kray, Jenny Maher, Kris Balwinski, Mark Maher, Mike Greuber and Tim White and, in the 11-12 age group: Eric Head, 13-14, and Jim Watts and Karl Staber, 18 and under.

Fourteen others grabbed two first-place ribbons. They are Shelley Conley, Dina Mastro, Lisa Miles, Jeff Eddy, Cathy Batterson, Mary Batterson, Mike Egan, Doug White, Jamie Thompson, Kelly Batterson, Steve Thompson, Gretchen Batterson and Teri Discher.

Gaining a blue ribbon for one event were Katie Greuber, Diane Sweikowsky, Rebecca O'Kray, Heather Jones, Elena Drake, Mike Goyette, Jim Sweikowsky, Julie Lutz, David Reynolds, Lisa Mondock, Diane Brown, Alan Jones, Renee Whitson, Colleen Egan, Tim Butler, Sean Barton, David Hills, Mary Beth Henson, Sandy Burns, and Lori Miles.

Also winning second place ribbons were Jeff Albert, Mac Sims, Don Mastro, Kevin Eddy and Kurt Tilley.

AUTO FACTS

by Chet Kosin

Whether your car has a manual or automatic transmission, it has one group of gears connected to the engine, and another set connected to the driveshaft. You use the lowest set of gears to get the car in motion. The engine drives a small gear, whose teeth engage the teeth of a larger gear connected to the driveshaft. The engine turns at high speed in relation to car speed and develops enough power to overcome inertia in two tons of car which doesn't want to be moved. As speed increases, the transmission is shifted to a second set of gears, letting the engine slow down, while still providing enough power to build the speed of the car. In third gear, the revolving parts of the transmission lock together and the driveshaft turns at the same speed as the engine. In reverse, the transmission gears turn the driveshaft in the opposite direction.

Bring your engine repair or machine shop problems to KOSIN'S AUTO PARTS, 26831 Michigan, Inkster! Our expert mechanics work on all types and sizes of engine. We offer fast, efficient, and reasonably priced service. Our machine shop is fully equipped to handle anything from motorcycle engines to Diesels including marine, agricultural, industrial, and automotive engines. HANDY HINT: On vacation your out-of-state license plates may be a dead giveaway that the trunk is full. When you stop at night, unload the car.

After a slow start, the Wildcats came alive in the stretch and put together a 10-game winning streak which enabled them to capture the Westland Youth Athletic Association's Central East League championship by defeating the Vikings 6-3. They went on to edge the Tigers, of the American Division, to claim the WYAA city

Kaline, American League win All-Star classics

Exploding for six runs in the fourth inning, the Al Kaline Division of the Grapefruit All-Stars stunned the Ty Cobbers in their annual confrontation last week 9-7.

The two Wayne leagues exchanged runs in the first inning and the Cobbers went ahead 3-1 with a 2-run spurt in the third, however, the Al Kaline Stars came to life in the top of the fourth and put what proved to be enough runs on the scoreboard to win the game.

Tim Guest, one of four Kaline hurlers to see action, struck out all six batters he faced during a two inning span. Ed Ruhoff, Kwan Hearn and Jason Fuchs also pitched for the winners.

Andy Osborne drove in three runs thanks to two hits, while mates Jeff Trent, Nick Lanthier and John Blazer also got two hits.

The losers used Gary Scott, Jerry Sherwood, Scott Pennington and Trent Pennington on the mound. John Eberhart doubled in two runs while Scott chased in a run with a triple and Jerry Sherwood made his single count for a two-run hit.

The American League throttled the National League 12-1 in their All-Star encounter as Charlie Hall drilled two homers and accounted for six RBIs for the winners. Keith Anderson, Pat Sheshop, Barry Lee and Charlie Hall all pitched for the winners who collected a total of eight hits off of four National League hurlers.

Dony Vojtkofsky, Richard Favazza, Brian Armstrong, who was the victim of Hall's grand slam homer, and Steve Jaskolski were the pitchers for the losers.

Angels rule Westland 'A' Babe Ruth League

By GEORGE WHITEHEAD

Keith Howe's fifth complete game in as many starts and a superb relief pitching job by Jeff Hannenberg lifted the Angels to the Westland Class A Babe Ruth City Baseball Championship last week with a 4-1 victory over the Yankees and a 7-5 come-from-behind triumph over the Senators.

The victories were the 15th and 16th straight in as many starts for the Angels.

Howe scattered four hits and doubled to drive in the eventual winning run in extending his personal pitching string to 5-0 in the division playoff win over the Yankees. He struck out 10 and walked just one against the stubborn Yankees, winners of the West Division regular season.

Mike Shumaker, the Yankee hurler, was nearly as tough as he fanned nine batters but was touched for a pair of runs in each the third and sixth innings. Brett Coulter put the icing on an Angel win with a two-out single for the last runs.

Against the Senators, winners in the Westland Babe Ruth North League, the Angels had trouble getting on track. The Senators combined six hits, two walks and several miscues for a 5-0 lead in the first three innings.

However, walks to Kurt (Korky) Whitehead and Chris Strome set the stage for a two-run blast by Daryl Smarsh to ignite a 5-run Angel uprising. Howe and Gerard Painter delivered clutch singles to knot the game at 5-all.

Meanwhile, Hannenberg was holding the Senators at bay until the sixth when Greg Gill and Smarsh slammed run-scoring singles for the Angel margin of victory.

Hannenberg, who came on to relieve starter Strome, struck out seven batters and didn't allow a run to cap his final game in the Babe Ruth League and give the Angels the city championship.

Smarsh, a 14-year-old batter, played the game (as he has the final four of the season) with his arm in a cast. In addition to driving in the three runs, he made several crucial catches in center field. Painter collected two hits as did Howe, who moved behind the plate for the first time in six years when Hannenberg went to the mound.

Hook Into More Summer Fun With Associated Newspapers Classified Ads

The Classified Section is brimming with terrific buys in things that make summer more fun. Take a look! You'll be lured by fishing, golf and other sports equipment, boats of every description, recreational vehicles from fold-away campers to completely self-contained motor homes. In fact, almost anything you're thinking of buying, you'll find for sale in the Classified Ads.

Classified Ads bring you extra money, too, by finding buyers for good things you no longer enjoy. Just go through your home and make a list of all the things that would be of value to someone else, but that you no longer use. People are looking for furniture, appliances, bicycles, musical instruments, camping equipment, boats, sporting equipment and much more. Don't let these "live" prospects snap up someone else's offer!

Decide today to hook the "extras" that mean a brighter, happier time for your family with fast-action Classified Ads.

Crowd throng to bargains

Wayne's annual Sidewalk Sale Days has become an event which most of the community's residents wouldn't miss for the world.

Combining a rare opportunity for real savings on first line merchandise with a festival atmosphere, residents and visitors alike will flock to the bargains offered by the local businessmen.

Over the years, the location of the sale has changed, some of the merchants have changed, and many of the customers have changed, but the values available to the thousands of shoppers who have made the annual visit to Wayne for the event, has remained the same.

From a garbage can to a woman's evening gown, it's all there, and at prices that will surprise most.

The smart shopper looks for value as well as price, so join the many smart shoppers who will find both at this year's Wayne Sidewalk Sale Days.
